Oil, Gas Boosts Delayed

By LINDA HUGHES
times Staff

A freeze on home heating oil prices in B.C. will continue at least until the end of the year and expected increases in the price of gasoline will be delayed 20 days.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said today new gasoline prices will not come into effect until after the September Labor Day weekend and the price increase will be 4.5 cents per gallon.

Wholesale gasoline prices were to increase 5 cents per gallon as of Aug. 15 as a result of increases in the per-barrel cost of crude oil in Canada.

Home heating oil was also to rise 5 cents per gallon this month but the B.C. Energy Commission recommended a current price freeze be continue indefinitely.

Macdonald said home heating oil will not increase in price at least until the end of the year and in January the energy commission will again consider possible price increases.

Propane will also be subject to a price freeze while the energy commission considers justifiable price increases for that fuel.

The price adjustments are the result of the energy commission's studies undertaken following the July 1 increase in the price of crude from $6.50 to $8 a barrel.

At that time, the federal government announced there would be a 45-day delay — to Aug. 15 — for the crude price increase to be reflected in gasoline and home heating oil prices.

But Macdonald said the B.C. Energy Commission decided that inventories in the province justified a 65-day delay to Sept. 3.

The new deadline coincides with the end of the Labor Day weekend and Macdonald said it will mean lower gas prices for vacationing British Columbians.

The 4.5-cent increase is at the wholesale level and the government does not have the power to control prices at the pump but the minister said he does not expect retailers to increase gasoline prices beyond that level.

Ontario extended the price delay period to 90 days but

FALL B.C. BUDGET POSSIBLE–BARRETT

Premier Barrett said today his government may consider bringing in an auxiliary budget in the fall as a means of combatting the ill effects of the June federal budget.

No decision has been made yet, he said, but it's a possible course of action.

The Ontario provincial government brought in additional budget measures, such as removing the sales tax on North American automobiles, after the federal budget was announced.

Barrett said at that time the federal budget was both regressive and inflationary and B.C. would have to study its effects to see what provincial action could be taken to lessen its effect on the economy.

ICBC Union Fund Dry

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

The $500,000 defence fund for striking Insurance Corporation of B.C. employees has been exhausted and weekly benefit payments have been stopped, a union official said today.

Bill Kyles, Office and Technical Employees Union business representative, said a system is now being worked out to deal with "priorities" or emergency cases on an individual basis.

"I would have to say there are undoubtedly some individuals in very difficult economic circumstances," Kyles said.

He said individual units of the union are attempting to "look after their own" and trying to help out people who are in dire financial straits.

The 1,800-member OTEU went on strike against the Crown corporation May 20 to back demands for a first contract.

Strike benefits for the first weeks of the dispute were set at $20 a week, but were raised to $40 a week around mid-June.

"The half million dollars we've gone through is a lot of money, especially when you consider that it all comes out of members' dues," Kyles said.

The money in the defence fund for the ICBC workers has come from dues paid by other OTEU members across Canada and from the union's international headquarters. Unions do not normally assess dues until a newly-organized local has achieved a first contract, so ICBC emplyees have paid only the $1 per person initiation fee.

"We really did expect a fairly difficult period but we didn't expect to be in a confrontation with a Crown corporation in quite this way," Kyles said.

The ICBC strike, which is exactly 12 weeks old Wednesday, has used up one-third of the international's defence fund, Kyles said.

The international defence fund is made up on the basis of a 25-cents-per-member per month assessment, while the local defence fund is one-eighth of one per cent of a member's monthly dues.

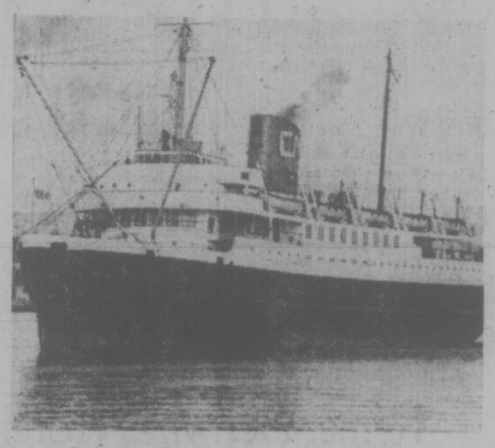
Kyles estimated that between 20 and 25 per cent of the ICBC employees would not return to work for the insurance agency after the strike.

"I don't think it will be just clerical people either, there will be some losses of people who have special skills in the insurance industry."

In Victoria, only two of the about 55 OTEU members have left so far, local shop steward Wayne Koski said today.

Kyles said the strike and the resulting loss of employees damaged not only the employees and the public, but the corporation itself. "The principle (of government-operated insurance) may be a sound one, but I don't think this has helped it."

He said that despite the losses, the support for the union stand is still evident. A strike vote taken in early May showed 97.5 per cent in favor of strike action and last week's vote on the corporation's latest offer was 85.5 per cent in favor of rejection.



Prince George . . . coastal run

REVENUE UP FOR MAGGIE

July revenues for the Princess Marguerite were up $100,000 over the same month last year, Resources Minister Bob Williams said today.

The increase is 14 per cent over last year when the ship was operated by Canadian Pacific.

During the same month, passenger volumes were up 7 per cent on the Seattle run and 10 per cent on the Port Angeles run, he said.

Total revenues for the government-operated service until the end of July were about $1.25 million.

But the minister said it was too early to say whether the government will make money on the service.

Revenues and passenger counts are higher than the government projected, he said, but there is a fine line between making a little money and losing a little.

Costs have increased somewhat, said Williams, because crew on the ship has been enlarged and ferry fares have not gone up.

The higher number of passengers has come despite the fact the ferry has not taken advance booking for tour parties as CP used to do, said Williams.

The heaviest day for passengers this year was Aug. 9 with 1,873 on board for morning run from Seattle.

A second coastal steamship has been added to the B.C. government's fleet for a cost of nearly $300,000.

The fire-damaged Canadian National steamship Prince George will be repaired by the government this winter in preparation for a one-week round-trip service up and down the B.C. coast starting next spring.

Victoria may be the southern terminal for the new service but Resources Minister Bob Williams, who announced the purchase today, said final details are yet to be worked out.

B.C. originally offered CN $1 for the vessel. Later the ship was damaged by a small fire and the company cancelled its run to Alaska.

The new price tag, which includes $230,000 in cash plus 28 acres of crown land in Prince George valued at $50,000 to $70,000, was a "negotiated compromise" with CN, said Williams.

(Earlier, Transport Minister Bob Strachan said numerous bids of about $200,000 had been made for the ship for use as scrap.)

Like the Princess Marguerite, purchased from Canadian Pacific earlier this year and now operating daily from Victoria to Seattle and Port Angeles, the government hopes to use the Prince George to boost the economies of the communities it will serve.

"The main thing is not to make money, although we can probably do that . . . it's to provide a service to the people along the B.C. coast," said Williams.

It is too early to determine, he said, whether the Princess Marguerite run will make money under government auspices but revenues are above initial projections. (CP sold the vessel because it was losing money).

The service along the coast will be designed as a tourist attraction as well as one to provide an economic link with small communities.

The ship may go as far as Alaska, said Williams, and will call at such places as Powell River, Campbell River, Alert Bay, Namu, Bella Bella, Bella Coola, Ocean Falls, Klemtu, Kitimat, Prince Rupert, Port Simpson and Stewart.

Either Victoria or Vancouver will be the southern terminus, depending on where the best arrangements can be made.

Crowd Razes Office

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — Thousands of stone-throwing demonstrators broke through a cordon of rifle-firing troops today and sacked Communist headquarters in the northern town of Viseu.

The crowd of about 4,000 smashed windows, ripped out plumbing, tossed office equipment onto the street and burned broken furniture in bonfires in front of the building.

"In every practical sense they destroyed the place," a fire department official said. "They even brought the bathtub out."

A police spokesman said Communists inside the headquarters fired pistols and threw gasoline bombs into the crowd.

A Misericordia Hospital spokesman said 15 persons were injured in the attack and that four were in critical condition. Two needed treatment for gunshot wounds.

Police reported one man also killed, but later retracted the statement.

The injured included police commander Adriano Sanches, who was hit in the head by a rock as troops fired shots into the air in an attempt to break up the crowd.

It was the latest in a series of attacks against Communist headquarters in the conservative north. Some fifty Communist centres have now been sacked in recent weeks.

40 Suites for Demolition, Fire Safety Costs Blamed

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Three Victoria lawyers who own the 40-suite St. Helen's Apartments at 828 Courtney plan to demolish the building rather than carry out costly improvements ordered by fire officials to meet current safety standards.

"The cost of bringing this old building up to the standards they require — the 1975 National Building Code — is just an impossibility," Chris Randall, president of RMP Developments, said Monday.

"It would be economic suicide to even try to do anything with it."

Randall said tenants in the rambling three-storey frame apartment haven't had eviction notices yet, but they are aware that the building is to be closed and demolished "before the end of the year."

The closure announcement comes only about five weeks afer the property owners were served with an order July 4 by the local assistant to the B.C. Fire Marshal (an official in Fire Chief Eric Simmons' department), instructing them to upgrade the building and its equipment.

Simmons acquired the new powers to deal with substandard buildings under recent amendments to the Fire Marshal's Act, but before he launched the program last month he warned city council that in some cases the financial burden on owners could result in the buildings being closed and tenants evicted.

Old hotels and apartments with large numbers of occupants are receiving priority attention by the fire officials. A spokesman said Monday nine orders listing required improvements have already been issued, and another seven are ready to go out.

In the case of the St. Helen's Apartments, the order set out two pages of requirements, including such points as access to fire exits, fire detection and alarm systems, emergency lighting and boiler enclosure.

Randall, whose partners in RMP Developments are fellow-lawyers R. J. Meyer and E. J. Pollard, said he went through the building with the assistant fire marshal and chief building inspector, "and within the first five minutes we were looking at over $40,000" in putting right various deficiencies.

"It seemed that every time we turned around we were in the position of having to make more changes," he added, because each point listed by the fire official would have needed complementary work stipulated by the building inspector.

He said the officials admitted they were allowed no discretion in the matter, and if the same rigid approach is adopted in dealing with all Victoria's older buildings he

B.C. TAKES LEAD IN WESTERN GAMES

REGINA (CP) — British Columbia rode the arms and legs of a tremendously strong track and field contingent to a commanding lead in the medal standings after the first day of the Western Canada Summer Games Monday.

Athletes from the Pacific province grabbed seven of the eight track-and-field gold medallions awarded Monday.

B.C. also picked up two more titles in judo and another in cycling to finish the day with 10 medallions. (See story on page 10.)

Greenpeace Charge

VANCOUVER (CP) — Six members of the Greenpeace Foundation were charged with trespassing after a picket line halted delivery of supplies to the Soviet supply vesel Kurilsk. A teamsters union truck driver refused to cross a Greenpeace picket line on the waterfront earlier in the day.

Mars Trip Delayed

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Space agency officials have rescheduled for Thursday an attempt to launch an unmanned Viking spacecraft on an 11-month voyage to look for signs of life on Mars.

The Viking launch was postponed Monday after officials discovered a valve in the first stage of the Titan-Centaur rocket was stuck open.

More Typhoid

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Four more cases of typhoid were confirmed by the provincial ministry of health Monday, bringing to at least 21 the number of persons who have contracted the disease.

Sales Halt Sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz has asked American grain companies to suspend further sales to Russia. His request, backed up with the threat of legal action, followed new government estimates showing cuts in 1975 grain production prospects both in the U.S. and Russia.

Jobless Totals Still a Record

OTTAWA (CP) — The national unemployment rate remained at a 14-year record high in July, with a slight increase in the jobless rate for women and workers in Newfoundland and Alberta.

Statistics Canada reported today the July rate was 7.2 per cent, a level which has remained constant for five months, except for May, when it dropped to 7.1 per cent.

The British Columbia rate was down four-tenths of one per cent to 7.9, still above the national average.

The Canada-wide rate continued to be the highest since 1961, when the July 7.2 per cent represented the beginning of a decline after 11 months of higher levels.

Although there were slightly fewer jobs available in July of this year, the number of persons seeking work declined at a marginally greater rate. The statistics are adjusted for seasonal variations. Economists regard adjusted figures as a more accurate measure of unemployment.

On an actual basis, 653,000 were officially unemployed in July, 89,000 in B.C.

Student unemployment dropped to 8.1 per cent from 14.4 per cent in June — consistent with the annual pattern — although the rate remained high in comparison with the two previous years. Student unemployment was 6.1 per cent in July, 1974, and 5.8 per cent in July, 1973.

On a seasonally-adjusted basis, the unemployment rate for those 24 and younger dropped to 12.3 per cent from 12.6 per cent in June.

The rate for men 25 and older dropped to 5.5 per cent from 5.6 in June while the rate for women of the same age increased one-tenth of one per cent to 4.7 per cent.

The jobless rate dropped or remained steady in all provinces except Newfoundland, where it rose one per cent to 18.9, and Alberta, where it increased to 4.4 per cent from 4.2 in June.

The best improvement was in Manitoba, where the rate dropped by 1.7 per cent to a 2.6 per cent rate for July.

Little change had been expected in the July unemployment rate, although forecast-

NO M-B DIVIDEND

VANCOUVER (CP) — MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. directors have decided to omit third-quarter dividend payments.

This is the first time the company has skipped a dividend since the second quarter of 1971 when the company reported its lowest earnings in history.

Chairman George Currie said net earnings for the first half of 1975 were $19.8 million or 94 cents a share compared to $50.21 million or $2.37 a share in the corresponding 1974 period.

Sales and other income was $715.94 million in the first half of 1975 and $720.93 million in the same period last year.

Currie said the company's shipping subsidiary, Canadian Transport Co. Ltd., lost $6.7 million after income tax recoveries and the market for building materials, packaging products and liner board was depressed.

"Further transportation losses which are anticipated during the last half of 1975 could impair significantly the profitability of MacMillan Bloedel for that period," he said.

City Housing Starts Plunge for June

A dramatic plunge of 36 per cent in the rate of new housing starts in Victoria is indicated in preliminary figures for June from the federal government's mortgage agency.

Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. reports there were only 203 units started in the metropolitan area compared with 317 in June 1974, with the sharpest decline in apartment-type construction.

Single family dwelling starts totalling 122 units were actually up 26 per cent from a year earlier, but the remaining types numbered only 81 units for a 64 per cent drop.

Improvement in single family starts was a small bright spot in new housing statistics for the first six months of 1975, which in Victoria show a 31 per cent decline from last year at the end of June.

Cumulative figures from CMHC show 399 single family starts (off 42 per cent from 684 in the first half last year) and 744 others, (off 23 per cent from 961), for a total 1,143 (down 30 per cent from 1,645).

June statistics will be confirmed next month.

Preliminary figures indicate new housing of all types in B.C. rose by 5 per cent in June — 2,475 units compared with 2,353 last year—and 46 per cent over May of this year, with the improvement entirely in centres other than Victoria and Vancouver.

BUDGET DEFICIT REACHES $954M

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government spent $954 million more than it collected during the first three months of the current fiscal year, the finance department reported today.

The budgetary deficit — which is accumulating at a rate faster than that predicted for the year by Finance Minister John Turner — resulted from the spending of $6,874 billion during April-June while revenue for the period totalled only $5.92 billion.

During the same period last year, there was a surplus of $180 million, resulting from revenue of $5.758 billion and expenditures totalling $5,578 billion.

Fisherman Feared Dead in Strait

Missing is Mike Hulse, 22, of Port Angeles. He was first believed to have been trapped below decks of the 60-foot vessel Pelican but divers established the boat was empty shortly before she sank one mile offshore, 13 miles north of Port Angeles.

Another man aboard the Pelican — Adolf Sandness, 60, of Aldersood Manor, was rescued by the tug and flown to a Port Angeles hospital.

The collision happened at 6:30 a.m. but a coast guard spokesman said the search for Hulse had to be suspended Monday because of fog conditions hat reduced visibility to almost zero.

Owners to Demolish 40-Suite Apartment

can envisage other owners opting for conversion of the buildings to another use, or demolition.

"Anyone who gets faced with the type of order we received is going to be in a difficult position," Randall said. "There is no way a building of that age can comply with 1975 building code standards."

There is no direct municipal involvement in the upgrading program — appeals against the orders are to the fire marshal himself — but Ald. Sam Bawlf has repeatedly warned council in recent months that "blanket" implementation of the building code standards would impose a hardship on owners of older buildings and perhaps lead to unnecessary closure.

Bawlf noted today, however, that council didn't seem inclined to accept his suggestion for a compromise measure which would ensure reasonable fire safety without unduly high cost.

He advocates that where a building is of such advanced age that structural improvements are unrealistically expensive, the owner should be allowed to install a sprinkling system.

This approach has been successfully adopted in Vancouver, Bawlf said, with the result that several buildings which could have been forced to close are still providing shelter at a reasonable price for low-income tenants.

Mrs. Julie Anderson, who has been manager of the St. Helen's Apartments for the past three years, said there are nine vacancies now and tenants are "gradually leaving" as they find alternative accommodation.

There are some pensioners and service veterans among them, she said, but "they are mostly newcomers" including students and younger itinerant people.

John Wilson, 75, who pays $65 for his furnished room about 10 by 20 feet, plans to move this month but says few apartments are available in town at that price.

Another basement tenant who refused to be named said: "I like it here. It's central — close to town.

"Things are very quiet and I mind my own business. Everybody else does the same," he said.

His dingy room's wallpaper was stained with years of moisture and grease. A neighbour said a fire had smoked the walls black long ago and no cleaning or redecoration had ever been done.

"It's not the palace but it's cheap," said Chuck Armstrong, three flights up in room 24.

Armstrong's rent is $70 and he doubts he will find accommodation elsewhere that is so inexpensive without moving from Victoria altogether.

He is considering looking in Vancouver, he said.

SEXY CIG SELL OUT

LONDON (AP) — British cigarette makers announced today a voluntary advertising code that says their product must not appear to make people more youthful, sexier, braver, more relaxed or better at their jobs.

The advertising guidelines came less than a week after the government said it was considering new controls over the tobacco industry.

The code was drawn up by the manufacturers and the British code of advertising practice committee and will operate under the supervision of the Advertising Standards Authority, an independent body which promotes the highest standards of advertising.

"The essence of the revised code," said an ASA spokesman, "is that advertisements for cigarettes and hand-rolling tobacco should not encourage people — particularly the young — to start smoking, or, if they are already smokers, to increase their level of smoking, or to smoke to excess."

The code does not include the smoking of pipes or cigars.

The media will be asked not to accept advertisements that contravene the code.

Cigarette commercials have been banned on television since 1965 but commercials for pipe tobacco and cigars are still shown.

Angola Armies Withdraw

Times News Services

Portuguese officials hope the remaining 450 soldiers of a third group will withdraw, permitting a joint army to restore peace in the capital.

The National Union for the Total Independence of Angola said its troops and officials left Monday for Angola's second-largest city, Nova Lisboa, 300 miles to the southeast.

Meanwhile, troops of the National Front for the Liberation of Angola were evacuated from Luanda by sea to Ambrizete in northern Angola.

The Portuguese national airline TAP, meanwhile, airlifted about 700 refugees from Nova Lisboa today as part of the expanded plan to evacuate more than 250,000 Angolan whites from the war-torn country by Oct. 31.

More than 30,000 whites, fleeing the fighting between the rival independence movements have sought shelter in Nova Lisboa.

Portuguese troops occupied the 16th century Sao Pedro da Barra fortress overlooking the harbor in Luanda after they evacuated soldiers of the national front.

The front troops held the fort for about three weeks, defying attempts by the Soviet-backed Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola to drive them out.

Their departure gave the Popular Movement complete control of Luanda.

In a related development, the Portuguese government today rejected an ultimatum by the Democratic Union of Timor to grant immediate independence to that colony in the Pacific Ocean.

An official spokesman said families of troops stationed there have been evacuated, but that the soldeirs themselves were staying behind with the colony's Portuguese government in an attempt to salvage the situation.

Cruise Ship

Williams said the interior of the ship is in excellent condition and once repairs are made to the fire-damaged area the exterior "is definitely in for a major change."

"Native Indian designers will be invited to take part in design competition to develop a bold, Indian motif for the ship's exterior," said the minister.

Details of the competition will be announced early in September.

With a gross tonnage of 5,812, the ship has stateroom accommodation for up to 318 people and has space for 330 tons of regular cargo, 57 tons of refrigerated cargo, nine tons of mail and 181 tons of stores.

The Prince George, which was operating on a cruise run to Alaska, now is tied up at the foot of Main Street in Vancouver.

Arrangements for crewing the vessel have not been made yet but Williams said the government can rely on expertise of the crew of the Marguerite, many of whom were previously employed on the Prince George.

GAS HIKE DELAYED

Macdonald said that province does not have any regular price control mechanisms so the price at the end of September may increase more than the 5 cents it is increasing across the country.

The minister said the next task of the energy commission will be to study possible establishment of uniform gasoline prices around the province.

If a bottle of Scotch costs the same in Pouce Coupe as in Vancouver, Macdonald said he did not see why gasoline should not cost the same.

He said he believes the provincial government would have the power to force a uniform price system in the province.

Drug Test Was Fatal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Army announced today its investigators have discovered that a civilian psychiatric patient died after receiving a drug injection in a 1953 test under army contract.

It was the first death reported as a result of extensive army-sponsored drug experiments dating back more than 20 years. These experiments involved about 4,000 soldiers and civilians.

Unemployment Stays Up

The Canadian Labor Congress predicts levels of 7.5 to eight per cent by the end of the year and into 1976, although the economy is expected to show the beginning of a recovery during the same period.

"It takes a prolonged recovery before employers are likely to take on many additional workers," said Russell Bell, CLC research director.

The jobless rate remained the same as for June in Quebec, where it was 8.8 per cent, and Saskatchewan, where it was 2.9 per cent.

The rate declined in Ontario to 6.3 per cent from 6.4 in June.

In New Brunswick, the rate dropped one-half of one per cent to 10.7 and Nova Scotia it was down three-tenths of one per cent to seven per cent.

On a seasonally-adjusted basis, the number of persons holding jobs in July was 9,316,000, a decrease of 12,000 from June. But at the same time, the number in the labor force dropped by 13,000 to 10,053,000.

On an actual basis, 9,826,000 held jobs in July, an increase of 188,000 from June — a normal increase for mid-summer. On the same basis, the labor force totalled 10,479,000, an increase of 138,000 from June.

Prices Falling Off

OTTAWA (CP) — The industrial selling price, a broad measure of factory gate prices, turned downward in June after nearly two years of regular monthly rises, Statistics Canada reported Monday.

The index was three-tenths of one per cent lower than the May level, but is still 11.9 per cent higher than in June, 1974. Industry prices had been rising steadily since September, 1973.

The most significant declines were for petroleum and coal products and primary metals. Prices in the food and beverages industries were lower because of declining sugar and flour prices. Leather industries and non-metallic minerals were fractionally higher.

The general wholesale price index, a less extensive survey, also showed a three-tenths of one per cent decline in June after three consecutive monthly rises.

The index is still 6.8 per cent higher than a year ago.

Six of the eight major groups measured by the wholesale index turned lower, while one rose and one was unchanged.

The largest declines were for vegetable products, fully-manufactured goods, wood and textile products. An 18.3 per cent drop in prices for sugar and its products contributed to some declines in other product catergories.

Prices were lower for all the iron and metals groups, and for chemicals.

The only major group that rose was animal products, mainly because of higher livestock prices, Statistics Canada said.

the weather

Under mainly clear skies temperatures fell in many regions to less than 10 degrees overnight with some localities in interior districts reporting readings near 5. With the main storm track now having been shifted well to the west of the province the outlook for the next few days is for mainly sunny weather in nearly all districts with temperatures warming slightly each day.

An Obscenity-Laced Plea For Better Treatment . . .

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Claire Wilson, 25, a B.C. Penitentiary prisoner charged in the 41-hour hostage-taking incident at the institution two months ago, Monday appealed to Judge Philip Govan to do something about guards' treatment of him.

Wilson, whose speech was laced with obscenities, told the judge he wants to lay an assault charge against one guard who he said pushed him down a flight of stairs while his hands were manacled.

He also said he had been tear-gassed in his cell since the incident ended June 11 with the death of Mary Steinhauser, 32, a classification officer at the maximum-security federal institution.

Miss Steinhauser was fatally shot and prisoner Andy Bruce, 26, was wounded when guards rushed a vault in the classification area where the hostages — all prison employees — were held.

Wilson, Bruce and Dwight Lucas, 20, all are serving life terms and are charged with possession of offensive weapons, escaping lawful custody and 15 counts of forcible confinement.

"I'm just a judge, I have no control over the prisons," Judge Govan said after Wilson complained of mistreatment.

The judge suggested Wilson make a formal complaint and said he could see a justice of the peace regarding an assault charge.

Wilson apologized for his outburst of profanities after he said there isn't a thing the criminal justice system can do to him.

"This whole court is a farce," he said. "You know it and I know it.

"There isn't a . . . thing you can do to me."

Private Gun Ban Urged

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mayor Art Phillips said Monday the right to keep guns in private homes should be abolished.

Phillips said he was distressed by reports that guns in Canada are selling almost as fast as they can be produced and imported.

He said people should be prohibited from keeping guns in their homes. Gun ownership should only be permitted by persons belonging to recognized sports shooting or hunting clubs, he said.

He said the guns of club members should at all times, except when in actual use for sporting or hunting purposes, be retained under the control of the club.

Simple registration of firearms will not provide a solution and that much tougher measures are necessary, he added.

In addition to requiring membership in recognized clubs, Phillips said, that in order to own a gun persons should be fingerprinted and required to take courses to prove their competence to handle weapons.

VANCOUVER (CP) — University students are still looking for jobs as one of the bleakest summers for employment opportunities draws to a close, Sue Bristol of Canada Manpower said Monday. "A lot have had jobs that ended so now they're looking for casual work to finish the summer," said Mrs. Bristol, assistant co-ordinator of the summer employment program in British Columbia and the Yukon. Mrs. Bristol said she was "really flabbergasted" to learn from the 37 student manpower centres in B.C. and the Yukon that many students were still actively seeking work.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Local Initiatives Program grants for British Columbia and the Yukon have been increased to $18.3 million in 1975-76 from $9.8 million the previous year. Canada Manpower spokesman Ed Farey says he doesn't know whether the higher allocations will double the 3,800 jobs created by last year's 514 LIP projects because "we don't know how many applications will come in."

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Workers' Compensation Board has announced 37 awards totalling $71,690 under the Criminal Injuries Compensation Act. The awards included $11,014 granted a 56-year-old Vancouver man who received knee injuries while trying to break up a fight in a city beer parlor.

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver Public Aquarium spokesman said Monday the male killer whale Hyack, 8, is growing up and showing sexual interest in the aquarium's female whale, Skana, 13. Curator Gil Hewlett said it would be a world first if the two whales produce offspring in captivity.

Hospitals Off-Limits To Family Doctors?

VANCOUVER (CP) — Family doctors may soon find hospitals off limits unless they upgrade their standards, says Dr. A. J. MacGregor, of Victoria, president of the College of Family Physicians of Canada.

"If the standards demanded by hospitals and the profession continue to rise, as they surely will, and if medical schools and internships cannot produce a vastly superior product, the day of the family doctor in the hospital will be over," said Dr. MacGregor.

Licensing agencies have been remiss in not requiring higher standards, he added.

"We can't seem to make it clear to them (the boards that license doctors) that a lot of things have changed.

"People in anaesthesia tell us that at least six months training is necessary. Many professors of obstetrics suggest that no one should deliver a baby unless he has had six months training, and a lot of internists think that no general practitioner should be allowed in a coronary unit."

There are advantages to the family doctor following his patient "from the home, to the office, and into the hospital," he stressed.

"I believe in our society this is still a valid method of practice. If we wish to preserve it we must prepare ourselves for it educationally and expect that the licensure agencies keep up with this level of professional expectation."

MacGregor suggested one means of allowing general practitioners to catch up with the expanding body of medical knowledge would be to shorten the undergraduate training period by one year.

That extra year, he said, could be spent in family practice residency in a hospital.

HUTCHEON REPORT PUBLIC WEDNESDAY

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia government will release Mr. Justice Henry Hutcheon's report on the forest dispute on Wednesday, deputy labor minister James Matkin said Monday.

Matkin also said Labor Minister Bill King will hold a news conference at noon Wednesday.

Mr. Justice Hutcheon is scheduled to present his nonbinding recommendations on wages, fringe benefits and other contract changes to the labor minister today.

King apointed the B.C. Supreme Court justice as mediator July 12 in an effort to stop a total shutdown of the industry.

Pr. George Girds For Sex Battle

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — The city will ask British Columbia municipalities to financially back its legal battle with the Garden of Eden sex shop, Mayor Harold Moffat said Monday.

Moffat said in an interview other municipalities, which he did not identify, have said Prince George should contest the B.C. Court of Appeal's decision to allow the shop to open.

He said that because of the interest in the case shown by other municipalities, Prince George will ask other centres and the Union of B.C. Municipalities to back the city's appear to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Moffat said the city must file with the court within 30 days of receiving formal notice of the Court of Appeal judgment if it plans to appeal, but so far hasn't received official word of the Aug. 1 judgment.

The Court of Appeal ruled that the city could only regulate and not prohibit granting of business licences and that public morality was not grounds for prohibiting businesses.

Moffat said the city has already spent about $3,000 in legal fees and would spend another $10,000 if it were to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Regulation, Not Rubber Stamps

Only last May 26 the Canadian Transport Commission rubber-stamped air fare increases of between 10 and 14 per cent. Now, less than three months later, both Air Canada and Canadian Pacific airlines have announced plans to slash fares by up to 35 per cent for excursion trips in off-peak periods. An Air Canada official said lower rates were an attempt to generate an additional $500 million revenue during the slow fall and winter periods.

In May, the airlines were telling the co-operative CTC that higher rates were urgently needed to offset fuel and labor costs. Now the same people are saying they will generate another $500 million by slashing air fares. All this push-me pull-you logic suggests that neither the airlines nor their CTC sidekick has a firm grip on good business practices. That the CTC allowed the May increases indicates the regulatory body did not investigate the airlines' case before giving its notorious usual automatic approval. On a return fare basis, Canadian air fares have gone up a whopping 110 per cent since 1973.

And proposed fare decreases are nothing more than tinkering. Businessmen and others who must fly frequently will receive no discounts. Nor will the excursion rates be available in summer months. So-called frill cutting doesn't extend to cutting out in-flight meals or reservations in exchange for reduced fares. It is almost as if Air Canada reluctantly decided on a half-hearted attempt to mollify its critics without really changing current practices that leave planes half-full on occasion.

Last May, a study commissioned by the Consumers Association of Canada criticized Air Canada for excessive costs. The crown corporation had over-invested in aircraft and hired too many employees according to the report. It suggested costs per passenger mile could be much lower. More discounts for the young and the elderly were advocated in order to fill the half-empty planes. Of course the CTC largely ignored the study done by a private organization, a research job the CTC should have done itself.

Three months after the May increases what do we hear? Yes, that's right, no-frill fares and discounts for certain groups. The CTC should disband itself in shame. Even more galling, how can an Air Canada vice-president refer to his business as "the highly competitive" airline market? Certainly he couldn't have been referring to domestic routes where there hasn't been price competition since airliners were biplanes. Isn't it odd how all the major airlines apply in concert for fare increases, and now fare decreases? If that is competition, then free enterprise is alive and well on communal farms in China.

The public has had enough of this sham. Transport Minister Jean Marchand admitted earlier this year that transport was in a mess. Air Canada chairman Yves Pratte doesn't seem to know what his underlings are doing. The CTC flies in tandem with the airlines. Nobody connected with transport seems to know what anybody else is doing. The governmental reaction appears to be that ignorance is bliss. Now, more than ever before Canada's air transportation industry needs regulation rather than rubber stamps. A good place to start would be in ensuring a little competition on domestic routes. After all isn't that supposed to be the backbone of free enterprise?

Extend Ferry Schedules

Announcements of long ferry waits are about as common as small craft warnings in Juan de Fuca Strait in these parts, despite provincial statistics which show ferry traffic is down one per cent for July. The transport situation for island residents becomes intolerable during summer months. Must we suffer five and six-hour waits for public transportation as well as pay more for many items of necessity just because we live on an island?

The answer appears to be yes, no matter what regime is in power. Transport Minister Robert Strachan's vague talk of a reservation system has come to nought. More ferries are on order but that won't solve the problem either. As Greater Victoria visitor information centre director Terry Farmer said, ferry schedules should be extended. If the government won't, or perhaps can't because of expense and union difficulties, introduce an all-night service, it could certainly lengthen schedules from five a.m. to midnight as opposed to the seven a.m. to 10 p.m. current sailings. This would ease the situation in the summer months, and perhaps all year long.

The visitor information centre's complaint is only the latest in a long line of pleas from various island organizations, including the Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce. To date the government has only offered a shrug as pressure mounts and ferry lineups grow ever longer.

As long as the public shows the same indifference as the government the situation won't change. The chamber of commerce and the visitor information centre deserves public support on this issue to make government move. No man is an island, nor should we be made to feel as though we are by the ennui of the provincial government.

Making Progress, en Francais

OTTAWA—Whatever balanced judgement history makes of Pierre Trudeau's leadership of this country there is little doubt that on the vital question of its survival as a bicultural entity he will be viewed as a tough, determined man.

That, of course, is what a leader must be. It is easy to criticize the prime minister on many issues but it seems to me that on this fundamental one he has provided an element of courage and determination that otherwise might easily have gone by default.

Probably no one can say yet whether this country will stay together or whether, half a century from now, the map of the northern part of the continent will be quite differently drawn. The case for the various separatisms—Quebec, western, Maritime — cannot just be thrown aside. There is a case in favor of each of them.

Equally, however, the case for survival of a nation cannot be thrown aside either as men like Rene Levesque seek to do. There are plenty of us who believe in the nation and cherish its survival. But to a large degree that rests with Trudeau's leadership during a crucial period.

A Baited Hook

The basic approach that Trudeau has made to the country right from the beginning is that power must be shared between the two main communities. That is not just an apepal to fairness. It is also a baited hook. True power is a lure that not many can disregard.

The extent to which the French element of the nation actually shares power has gone up enormously in the last few years—in the Trudeau period. Given the usual thorniness of human nature this has taken place with remarkably little turmoil. One would have expected more fuss over it and it may well be that the prime minister's rigid determination has provided a valuable element of certainty.

The rate of change has been surprisingly fast. Four years ago, only 14 per cent of the senior officials in the government apparatus were French. Today the figure is 20.4 per cent. That is still too low in relation to the ethnic composition of the nation but it represents change at a fast rate. Admittedly, the total number of powerful bureaucrats is not larger—under 1,000—but we are not talking about numbers. The subject matter is power and its possession is changing.

For all the change that is taking place it does remain true that the French language does not yet possess equal status within the federal government. Too many francophones still must use English as their ordinary language of work. The decision announced last week to increase the number of French-language work units is an attempt to correct this. It does not seem to me to be just to describe this move, as some have attempted to, as the introduction of a linguistic quota system. Simply as a practical matter, there is not much sense in running a costly language training system, with considerable disruption of administrative routine, unless the people emerging from it can both speak another language and equally have a chance to do so.

PIERRE TRUDEAU
. . . dogged determination

To alter the basic structure of a national government and its supporting apparatus in this way is a very large undertaking and there is one quite legitimate complaint to be laid against the powerful francophones in government.

Trudeau himself and ministers like Jean Chretien tend to give too little credit to the English-speaking community for the way in which it has adapted to rapid change. If one were counselling men like these it would be to suggest to them an old truth about human nature — more flies are caught by honey than by vinegar.

We are far from the end of this period of change and some of the adaptation remains to be done on the French side. Any minority emerging from a period of discrimination — English, French, Jewish, Indian or whatever — goes through a second period of undue protection. For a while after the end of the Second World War gentiles tended to be so appalled by the barbarities of the Nazi period that they were reluctant to criticize a Jew for anything. We have reached a healthier period when no one is likely to suspect himself of anti-semitism because he feels critical of someone who is Jewish.

Some Way to Go

In this country, we are still working our way through a comparable period. Anyone criticizing a French-Canadian who holds power has a dual problem. He must in the first place be certain that he is not doing it out of prejudice. In the second he must be aware that many people will suspect him of bias anyway.

As two linguistic communities work their way towards a more equitable sharing of power, there will certainly be situations in which the language a man speaks will be an important factor in the job he holds. This is true both of the old situation and the new one that is emerging.

It will take us some time yet, but we must work our way towards an easier situation in which people who hold power are exposed to examination and criticism without regard to their language. If we can get to that stage nationally, we will not have done anything wholly unique but we will certainly have done something unusual in human affairs. It seems to me that we are making a bit of progress.

JAMES RESTON

A Birthday—Five to Come?

WASHINGTON — At the end of his first year in the White House, and the beginning of his campaign for four more years beyond 1976, Gerald Ford must know that, even among the vast majority of his fellow-countrymen who wish him well, there is a strain of doubt.

The doubt is not primarily about this last year, though you can get an argument about his policies in both political parties. His personal conduct has been almost faultless. He has been open, available, candid and truthful, even at times when it exposed his own misjudgements and contradictions.

After Nixon, for the transition, this was probably more important than anything else. He removed the atmosphere of conspiracy. He saw his political opponents, argued out the issues with Mike Mansfield and his former colleagues in the house of representatives, and vetoed their bills when he thought they were wrong.

Decency a Rarity

Even now, his old buddies on Capitol Hill are furious about what they regard as his "government by veto," but when they are angry, he invites them down to the White House to talk it over, and when they think he is wrong, they at least believe he is honest. This is a big change in the last year, and a triumph of Ford's character and personality.

All this has come out in the newspaper and television reviews of his first year in the White House. The reporters and commentators who watch the calender and have to write about these political anniversaries have all concentrated on the point that Ford is "a decent human being."

This tells us something about the sad state of our politics — decency, fairness and openness are now news, not things to be taken for granted, but maybe enough to elect a man in his sixties for another four years.

This is the big change in the president in the last year. He had a clear picture of himself not so long ago as an appointed vice-president and an accidental and astonished president. He saw himself then as a temporary and interim president in his sixties who would go home to Grand Rapids after an unexpected triumph and look after his ailing wife.

But in this last year, surrounded by the majesty of the White House, and reassured by the press and his ceremonial duties at home and abroad, he has decided to go for another term. This is where the element of doubt comes in.

It is easy to be grateful for his modesty and grace in the transition from Nixon. He has been an almost perfect interim president, but when he takes popular acclaim for the transition as support for another four years into the radical problems of the 1980s, he raises a different question.

GERALD FORD
. . . changed by a year in power

He is a deeply conservative and national man in an increasingly radical and interdependent world. The nation and the world are suffering from disruption and shock. He is a happy and appreciative man, with a kind of thumby practical wisdom, but he does not really grapple with the perplexing problems of the insurgent hum of the age.

In this sense, he is very honest about his past, as leader of an opposition minority for many years. He senses the stress and anxiety of the young, and occasionally resents the smarties and pushers and extravagantly greedy lobbyists on the Hill, but in the crunch he comes down on the side of things as they were, and worries more about the threat of Ronald Reagan than the threat of the coming revolution of the hungry two-thirds of the world.

There is something very amiable, and even good about all this, if you look merely at the last year, when the nation needed a respite from the tensions of Vietnam and Watergate, but in looking at the president at the end of his first year, it is important to distinguish between the past and the future.

He has glimpses of the elusive future, but he has an officious conscience about the Republican past and the threat of conservative opposition at the Republican nominating convention next year.

He can go to Helsinki and give amnesty to the Russians for their aggressions in Eastern Europe, but not to his own fellow countrymen who opposed Vietnam.

Knifed the Poison

It is hard to discern any guiding purpose in his thought, any visible centre in his philosophy for the future, or any directing brain.

In short, he has knifed the poison in our political system in the last year, which is quite an achievement but in being grateful for that we should not forget the question he has now put to the people, namely that we should reward him by electing him to lead the U.S through the radical problems into the 1980s.

These are problems for the young men of the rising generation, and the tragedy of American politics is that we seem to be stuck in both parties with men in their sixties.

For the last year of Gerald Ford, Americans should be grateful, but for the four years after 1976, since an election is not a judgment on the past but a bet on the future, maybe the U.S. should be careful. It is easy to celebrate his happy first birthday in the White House, but not necessarily to wish him many happy returns.

Parrott Criticized

Certain remarks by a former Victoria politician concerning my complaints about conditions at Royal Oak burial park were as ill-founded as they were intemperate.

Former alderman Cecil Parrott was quoted in your story of July 29 as threatening to sue another newspaper for a story and picture based on my complaint. Specifically, he said a picture of me in a weed-infested area must have been taken "in the bush."

Apart from impugning the integrity of a professional reporter, a nationally-renowned Victoria photographer and myself, the remark served to demonstrate Mr. Parrott's obvious unsuitability as a burial park trustee. Were he at all familiar with conditions at the cemetery he would have realized that the picture was taken in the old Anglican section of the graveyard a short distance from the grave of my maternal grandparents.

While I am pleased at efforts to remedy the situation at Royal Oak burial park, I feel there still must be a full public explanation by the trustees of their current financial predicament. The public deserves to know whether reductions in maintenance staff have been accompanied by ever-higher administrative costs and a burgeoning burial park bureaucracy.

In the meantime, Mr. Parrott should concern himself less with the conduct of the press and public complainants and more with his own responsibilities as a trustee. — Pamela Claridge, Orangeville, Ont.

In a few days my work here will have finished. In the more than nine years I have been in charge of this office (and for two previous summers) I have received excellent co-operation from the Times in the presentation of weather data and weather "stories" and I wish to thank you for this.

To the general public as well, I express my thanks for their interest and, at times, forbearance. Weather services have come a long way during the third of a century I have been associated with them but there is still a long way to go and many things that have been done I would like to have seen done better. Nevertheless with modern advances, improvements will continue and many of the problems will be solved but I would expect a slow steady improvement rather than any sudden change. And more than ever meteorology will be associated with other disciplines. I am sure that meteorology will continue to be an exciting science, particularly for young people just entering it.

My work here has been enjoyable and although the weather didn't always agree with me, the climate does and I intend to remain a citizen of Greater Victoria.—Allan F. McQuarrie, Officer in Charge, Victoria Weather Office.

The millions of Mary Pickford admirers who have seen their favorite in Tess of the Storm Country, Hearts Adrift, Mistress Nell, Cinderella and Fanchon the Cricket, and other of her memorable characterizations have more and more marvelled at the wide range of roles that she has enacted. As further proof, her latest picture, Little Pal, offers evidence of her astounding versatility. She plays the title character, an Indian maid who rises to great heights of love and sacrifice for a white man, who, unknown to her, is already married. The greater part of the story is set in Kilisnoo, Alaska, at the time of the rush to the gold fields.

U.S. 'Security Industry' Never Had It So Good

By CHARLES FOLEY

LOS ANGELES — "If George Wallace had been wearing our bullet-proof vest, he would not be crippled today," said Ann Venderoef, executive secretary of J. Capps and Sons Limited, a firm which specialises in "soft body armour," capable of stopping a .44 magnum bullet fired from 10 feet. "Of course," she added, "we couldn't have saved the Kennedy brothers."

These days it is not only the politicians who are the targets of criminals, kidnappers, revolutionaries and the lone nut with the gun. Capps, which came out with its line of lightweight "Pro-Life Apparel" just a few months ago, already has several thousand orders from business executives, liquor store owners, bank cashiers, taxi drivers, and others in "high-risk" jobs. "We had to cut back our staff last year because of the recession," says a Capps spokesman. "Now we're re-hiring again."

The U.S. security industry has never had it so good, thanks to the crime wave at home and the spectre of political terrorism worldwide. In California alone, it is estimated that the number of "private police" exceeds the number of regular police officers by several thousands. The scores of companies that protect industrial plants, office buildings and individual lives report soaring profit increases as the demand grows not simply for guards but also for more sophisticated electronic protection.

California, scene of the Patricia Hearst kidnapping, has also been afflicted with a new outbreak of revolutionary bombings this year. Major banks, food stores, corporate headquarters have all been hit by hitherto unknown revolutionary bands, and businessmen here have not forgotten the discovery of a long list of top-flight executives marked down for assassination by the Symbionese Liberation Army.

At the same time, unemployment and the slump have brought about an increase in such crimes as bank robberies, shoplifting and fraud. Shoplifting, for instance, cost businesses some $5 billion last year, a figure that is expected to rise in 1975, according to the National Retail Merchants Association.

Then there's an unexplained rise in vandalism and violence at public events, from rock concerts to ball games. "I guess it's frustration — something to do with the times we live in," says an executive for one private security firm. "But throwing bottles at football players is becoming a national pasttime."

Hence the rise of the "rent-a-cop." Pinkerton's, America's biggest and oldest private protection firm, is adding to its army of 37,000 full-and-part-time guards. "We look for higher earnings in 1975," says a company vice-president, noting that last year's net profit was up 13 per cent to more than $7 million, while profits are 500 per cent higher than a dozen years ago.

The companies are not averse to cashing in on the climate of fear and apprehension. This is not a flamboyant industry, but firms such as Burns Protective Services are taking ads in the Wall Street Journal and other newspapers to warn that the tight economy "means greater risk of theft, vandalism, spying and sabotage." A rival agency sells security with the slogan "Who's Stealing From You?" then goes on to suggest that the odds are strong that 10 out of every 100 employees are up to some kind of chicanery.

The actual figures for crime on the job cannot be gauged, although most experts in the field think a one-in-ten estimate too high. "What we do know," says Robert Rockwell, a Burns executive who is also a top official of the California Security Guard Association, "is that the courts are putting criminals right back on the street." Like many others, he feels that California's liberal probation system is thwarting "the fantastic job" police are doing in combatting crime.

In cases of embezzlement and fraud, statistics show that only five per cent of people accused are ever convicted — while just one per cent land in prison. "These are pretty discouraging figures," says a Los Angeles company director. "We simply have to have these undercover agents in our offices, working as members of the staff; otherwise we'd go out of business." The American office worker can never be sure that the man at the next desk is not a private eye, hired to look out not only for criminals but also for political agitators. Guardsmark, one of the top ten industrial security firms, warns executives, in its sales talk, of the dangers of civil rights demonstrations and wildcat strikes.

How effective in this private protection, on which Americans spend around $15 billion a year — considerably more than they do on regular police? Rent-a-cop companies say that at the very least the presence of a uniformed armed guard is a deterrent; but other experts, like John Houlihan, of the California Institute for Local Self-Government, which has made its own study of the situation, argue that despite extensive use of private contract guards and related service in this state, there has been no noticeable dent in the crime figures.

The current explosion in the security industry is being watched, especially by the regular force, with some alarm. A spokesman for the state's Criminal Justice Office charges that often the hired guard gets minimal training, if any. "After one day, these people are marching about with guns on their hips, ready to shoot it out with potential criminals, while the police force, which already undergoes rigorous training, is trying to improve its standards."

The U.S. Law Enforcement Assistance Administration admits that 10 states have no regulation whatsoever over the standards of private protection forces, while all other states have only lax rules, inadequately enforced. Bills are being fed into the hopper at the state legislature to ensure that rent-a-cops undergo firearms training and courses in their legal powers of arrest, but their passage will take time and must face heavy lobbying by the security industry.

Meanwhile, critics charge that poorly-trained personnel, drawn from the ranks of the unemployed and low-income groups, are abusing their powers in a number of ways. Unnecessary force had been used, they say, along with improper search and illegal surveillance. Tens of thousands of contract security guards in California carry guns, according to a report prepared for the League of California Cities — yet half of these men "get no formal training in the use of firearms."

On several occasions, guards have shot down suspects in dubious circumstances, or wounded innocent bystanders, and a Los Angeles rent-a-cop is currently facing trial on charges of assault with a deadly weapon after an argument with a man in a bar. By and large, however, the police welcome the private effort as complementary to their own. "One has to remember that many private guards have also acted very heroically in some cases," says a Los Angeles police spokesman. "They've been wounded fighting off attackers in bank hold-ups and store robberies." It has also been pointed that only the vigilance of a private security man uncovered the Watergate breakin — a piece of alertness that changed the course of history.

When it comes to protecting top executives against assassination or kidnapping, security experts admit there is no real answer to a determined assailant. Some basic rules can be laid down: "panic buttons" in the executive suite, guards and TV surveillance for parking lots, no names on parking stalls, avoidance of travel at set times along set routes, and so forth. And there is always that bullet-proof vest: Capps' new line is advertised as "ideal for controversial VIPs who make many public appearances." Suits, pants, women's clothing, even underwear — all are available in high-fashion styles that come in plaids, double-knits, tweeds, and much more, thanks to development of Kevlar, a synthetic fabric which is half the weight of nylon but five times as strong as steel. An undershirt will cost you about $120, a sports coat from $250.

A Bold Bid To End Poverty

By DAVID B. OTTAWAY

DAR ES SALAAM — On a continent increasingly inclined toward socialism, Tanzania's communal Ujamaa (familyhood) villages have long been regarded a kind of bellwether and testing ground of African socialist theories.

Today, more than ever before, Tanzania is in the African limelight as its leaders uproot millions of peasants in a daring make-or-break bid to crash through the barriers of rural poverty, and to reverse the African-wide trend of falling agricultural production.

The boldness and sweep of Tanzania's current "villagization" campaign boggle the imagination and bring to mind the mass movements of peasants in the early years of the Soviet and Chinese revolutions.

In the past 15 months something like 6 million Tanzanian peasants have been exhorted, enticed, pressured and sometimes impressed into several thousand "planned villages," the would-be embyro of future African socialist communes.

Nowhere in Africa has anything like this ever been attempted or even seriously contemplated before. If the campaign succeeds and brings in its wake the much-sought-after "rural breakthrough," Tanzania seems destined to become a model of rural development on the continent. The appeal of socialism in Africa would then certainly be enhanced.

But if this venture in social engineering fails, the career of one of Africa's most respected leaders, Julius Nyerere, will probably be over, and the brief for African socialism seriously impaired, if not altogether shattered.

It is the very daring of Nyerere's great, and possibly last, gamble and the far-reaching implications for all of Africa that make the Tanzanian leader and his East African country such a worldwide fascination today.

Hundreds of African intellectuals, European ideologues and American revolutionaries, black and white, have flocked here with a mixture of great expectation, admiration and criticism for Nyerere and his socialist endeavors.

Even more remarkable is the broad international backing, including that of the capitalist West, that Nyerere has gained for his venture into rural revolution and socialist experimentation.

The World Bank, which recently tripled its annual aid to between $75 million and $100 million, and the United States, which this year quintupled its assistance to $40 million, seem to be vying with China and the socialist East to show their confidence in Nyerere and his theories.

Whither Tanzania with its massive peasant mobilization campaign, is the No. 1 question today among Tanzanian officials, diplomats and foreign advisers alike living in Dar es Salaam. (It is a hot, steamy capital, whose bumpy airport road and rundown buildings seem to announce the country's ranking as one of the world's 25 poorest.)

Some ultra-leftist expatriates regard the villagization campaign as nothing less than "a turn to the right" in the Tanzanian revolution. This is because there is little effort to inculcate socialist ideology into peasant minds.

Instead, the government is using as main selling point the promise of concrete social services — water, health clinics, schools and the like.

Worse yet from the viewpoint of these revolutionary purists, Tanzania is currently advertising in the U.S. Commerce Department's publications for American agribusiness to come and raise corn and rice. Some lands that were previously being farmed collectively have been quietly returned to individual, capitalist-style production.

On the other hand, some Western diplomats and aid experts see Nyerere as practically a captive of radical elements within the ruling party, the Tanzanian African National Union, and under enormous pressure to accelerate the country's stalled socialist revolution.

These observers note not only the villagization campaign, with its breakneck 1976 deadline for getting all peasants into new villages, but also the decision to push for universal primary education by 1977 instead of 1985. There have also been introduction of political criteria for university admission, recent application of an austere code of ethics to all TANU party members as well as its leaders and changes in the constitution to institutionalize the single-party system.

A third explanation of events under way in Tanzania focuses on Nyerere himself and holds that the gentle, gray-haired leader is a frustrated, restless man increasingly upset that his hopes and dreams of a socialist society remain unfulfilled.

PORT SHOREHAM, N.S. — The latest background study of the Science Council of Canada is all about conserving sources of energy, mostly oil, and I've been reading it under peculiarly appropriate circumstances. I'm down at my seaside cabin and it's only 15 miles from the site of what may some day be an oil refinery on the Strait of Canso.

(The refinery's future, incidentally, now holds a commanding lead over freight rates as the most tedious issue in Nova Scotia public life.)

The cabin is also within a dozen miles of Cerberus Rock and that's where an oil tanker broke her back in 1970 and spread her blobs and globs of black and lethal guck over miles and miles of previously virginal beach. Including mine.

P. D. McTaggart-Cowan ran the government effort to tidy up that mess. He's the executive director of the Science Council and, in the foreward to this new Council study, he says, "it is essential that we start questioning our incessant demand for more energy."

I agree with him and, right here in this very cabin, I have curbed my own incessant demand for more energy. You see, I eschew electricity here. My sacrifice merits at least an Order of Canada.

For months now the Nova Scotia Power Corporation has been softening us all up to the brutal inevitability not just of rate increases but of great, jumping, froggy increases, leaping upward and upward and forever upward.

And I believe the corporation because it says right here in the Science Council's study — which I'm reading by coal-oil lantern — that "Quebec and the Maritimes are very similar, in their dependency situation on oil imports, to the countries of Western Europe."

I have a dependency situation myself with regard to candles, coal oil, wood for the stove, and canned food which won't spoil — but the corporation wants almost $1,100 to string power lines down from the highway to the cabin.

That strikes me as a stiff fee for initiation to the joys of getting endlessly rising electricity bills and, since paying it would worsen my dependency situation at the bank, I've decided to tough it out down here without power lines. (I am, however, in the market for a battery-driven electric toothbrush.)

My decision confirms the background study's opinion that "prices are a major factor in a policy of reducing demand." But the author of the council paper, F. H. Knelman, goes on to argue that if we allow high prices alone to reduce demand we invite social injustice and economic backlash.

So what else is there to discourage Canada from remaining an energy profligate? The only answer, friends and fellow taxpayers, is big government.

Knelman urges a "program of public involvement, information and education" to "remove the barriers to successful implementation of energy conservation." And you know who'll have to pay for any massive campaign to make the people of Canada smarten up about energy conservation, don't you? Yup. The people of Canada.

Knelman acknowledges that certain conservation measures could throw people out of work but says too, that "unemployment insurance, labor markets, retraining programs, regional development, or labor information services could well provide a base which, if expanded, would ease any possible disruption . . ." Note that "if expanded." Well, what else are government services, for, if not to expand?

"The public at large," the report continues, "should accept as a social cost the dislocation, retraining and transfer of labor affected, if necessary in the form of direct payments . . ." Uh huh.

The transportation industry uses almost 60 per cent of all the petroleum Canadians burn, and Knelman has a series of intelligent and provocative ideas to cut the energy cost of getting people and cargo from province to province, city to city, or block to block.

He wants, for instance, to encourage the use of small autos and car pools, to clear urban congestion, take the rush out of the rush hour, lower mass transit fares, improve bus and rail services, shift intercity freight from trucks to railroads, shift shorthaul air passengers to buses and trains, and inspire people to take up walking and bicycling.

. . . (As an energy-saver, bicycling may not be such a hot idea. Bicycle thievery has reached such proportions in Halifax, for instance, that people there burn up extravagant amounts of energy just cursing the police.)

Knelman sees his aims achieved by a program of education, persuasion, tax incentives, tax penalties, subsidies, matching grants, controls and, of course, bright new government regulations. So naturally we'll need a whole new empire of bureaucrats to educate and persuade us, to administer tricky new tax programs, weigh applications for grants, enforce new rules.

Why in the time it takes to declare Trudeau's automobiles ecologically obscene or to ask which cabinet ministers' wives leave their bathroom lights burning all night, that trim little department of energy conservation will have grown into a great, shambling creature of DREE-like proportions.

And there it will be, boldly tackling the country's energy problem before it has solved its own. I see no other future. Indeed, I endorse Knelman's implicit conviction that the federal government should lead the country towards energy conservation.

I hope only that the cost of its leadership won't make us all wish we were still unenlightened energy wastrels. Meanwhile, I must trim the wick on my lantern. It's smoking so badly I can hardly read this story on what the Olympic Games are going to cost the taxpayers of Canada.

Reed Paper

Reed Paper Ltd. says earnings for the six months ended June 28 were $12,849,000 or $1.71 a share, down from $18,228,000 or $2.65 for the same period last year.

Sales for the six months were $164,403,000 compared with $143,693,000. Sales of $23,946,000 and earnings of $547,000 of two recent acquisitions, Alpa Indestries Ltd. and a division of Dwoskin Inc., are included for the period April through June.

Trans Mountain

Trans Mountain Pipe Line Co. Ltd. reports estimated consolidated net profits for the six months ended June 30 of $6.1 million or 81 cents a share compared with $8.5 million or $1.11 a share for the corresponding period last year. The company said average daily oil deliveries for the first half of 1975 was 321,921 barrels, compared with 404,545 barrels during the same period last year.

Gulf

Gulf Oil Canada Ltd. reports first-half earnings of 84.7 million or $1.86 a share compared with restated earnings of $82.3 million and $1.81 for the corresponding period of 1974.

President Jerry McAfee said in a report of shareholders that 1974 earnings were reduced by $3.9 million from those reported last year to reflect the effects of retroactive provisions in last November's federal budget.

Higher profits from sales of natural gas, despite lower volumes produced, accounted for the improvement in earnings.

While revenues increased to $811.4 million from $693.4 million, the rise was more than offset by increases in crude oil costs, operating expenses, royalties and taxes.

Dominion

Sales and profits of Dominion Stores Ltd. of Toronto for its fiscal quarter ended June 21 will show "commendable" increases over the same period last year, company president Thomas Bolton reports. Bolton said he would not predict results for the rest of the year because "the economy remains unstable and frankly unpredictable." He also said that his prediction of a 15-per-cent increase in food prices this, although "unfortunate," appears to be proving correct.

Bethlehem

Bethlehem Copper Corp. reports that its mine in the Highland Valley west of Kamloops had a net loss of $199,615 during the first six months.

Operating net profit during the first half of 1974 was $4,824,389.

The company said the loss on the operation was after provision for taxes which amounted to 136 per cent of the mine's earnings. It said earnings of the mine suffered because of low copper prices and escalating costs.

Operating profit before taxes was $560,696 for the first half of 1975 compared with $16,069,676 during the same period a year ago.

P. M. Reynolds, president of the company, said the regular dividend of 15 cents on Class A shares and a tax paid dividend of 12.75 cents on Class B shares will be paid Sept. 19 to shareholders of record Sept. 1.

Pine Point

Pine Point Mines Ltd. reports unaudited net earnings of $10.8 million or $2.40 a share for the first six months of 1975, compared with earnings of $19.7 million or $4.37 a share for the corresponding period last year.

Total sales were $47.5 million this year, compared with $67.1 million in 1974.

J. H. Salter, company president, said the decline in earnings was mainly because of reduced sales of zinc concentrate and lower realized prices for lead concentrate.

Canadian Pacific

Canadian Pacific Ltd. reports net earnings of $67.5 million or 92 cents a share for the first six months of 1975, compared with $86.7 million or $1.19 a share in the corresponding period last year.

The company said increased income from Canadian Pacific Investments Ltd. (CPI) was more than offset by reduced earnings of the transportation operations.

Earnings for the first half of 1974 included an extraordinary gain of $4.3 million. There were no extraordinary items in 1975.

The company's share of CPI's income was $63.4 million, an increase of $7.2 million over the first half of 1974.

This reflected improved results from petroleum, coal mining, newsprint, pulp, and real estate operations as well as the acquisition of control of the Algoma Steel Corp. Ltd. in July of last year.

Net income of CP Rail was $1.5 million, compared with $14.1 million the first half of 1974. Revenues were up by 11 per cent, but expenses rose by 14 per cent.

Railway freight revenue was up, mainly because of increased freight rates.

The loss on CP Air's operations in the first half amounted to $6.7 million, $5.2 million more than in the first six months of 1974.

Canadian Pacific Steamships Ltd. had a loss of $1 million in the first six months, compared with a profit of $3 million during the first half of 1974.

Lengthy strikes at ports in the United Kingdom and Canada added to difficulties created by rising costs and the recession in trade.

He previously worked for the B.C. government as an economist with the trade and commerce department and has subsequently worked for the federal government and as a consultant to the Saskatchewan government.

GUEST

Long Wait for 2nd Blast

Seismologist Dr. W. G. Milne is looking forward to a second high explosive blast planned to improve earthquake spotting along the Pacific coast.

But it will probably be another year before research ships are available to conduct another exercise like the successful blast set off shortly after 10 p.m. Sunday in the western approach to Queen Charlotte Sound.

The carefully-planned detonation of more than 5,000 pounds of dated munitions had been scheduled more than a week and awaited calm seas before being suspended at a depth of 500 feet in more than 1,000 feet of water 100 miles west of Cape Scott.

Even so, there were difficulties produced by what was described to Milne as marginally calm conditions in the frequently-stormy reach of waters off northern Vancouver Island.

The seismologist did not attend and has not had a full report of the exercise, but he considers it "a reasonable first try" on the part of west coast earth scientists to improve their ability to take accurate readings of disturbances in the earth's crust.

CNAV Laymore, an auxiliary naval vessel from Esquimalt, carried the explosives and a team of experts from the Canadian Forces diving and demolition unit at Colwood. Other research vessels were in the vicinity and took part, although primarily interested in other work.

Milne said movement of the sea produces a continuous background noise except under the most ideal conditions. Wave action at surface generates waves in the sea bed, which in turn are transmitted through the crust and are picked up by sensitive seismographs.

Detectors are placed at seven points on the coast and inland as far as Fort St. John. If an earthquake is strong enough, it will be recorded at each point and by means of calculation its point of origin can be determined.

But there are differences peculiar to each place which can't be determined unless, by working backwards, scientists know the precise location of the shock. When this is known they can apply a plus or minus correction to readings each time a tremor is detected.

Dr. Milne said next time it is hoped to alter the position, size or interval of the charge to make sure of a positive reading at all detection points.

STOL Routes Sought

MONTREAL (CP) — Nordair Ltd. has delivered a "letter of intent" to de Havilland Aircraft of Canada Ltd. for the purchase of eight Dash 7 planes for a proposed Short Takeoff and Landing service connecting Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto.

The 50-passenger aircraft, which have a value of about $2.85 million each for a total of $22 million, would be built at de Havilland's Toronto plant.

Frank Smith, Nordair's director for Ontario, said Monday in a telephone interview his company has notified de Havilland it would be willing to negotiate purchase of the aircraft subject to certain conditions.

These include the company getting government permission to operate the service and on the federal government's equipping Toronto Island airport as well as airports in Montreal and Ottawa for the Dash 7 service.

"We have made a representation to the air transport committee (of the Canadian Transport Commission) indicating that we would like to set up the service," he said.

"But we are awaiting a policy decision by the minister of transport as to whether a regional carrier will be given a licence for the service."

He conceded his company, which is the second largest of five regional carriers in Canada, might face stiff competition from Air Canada for a licence for the STOL routes.

Air Canada, through a subsidiary, Airtransit, is conducting a two-year experiment offering STOL service between Ottawa and Montreal.

ROLLING STONE

RANDOM NOTES
By RICH WISEMAN

SIX MONTHS AGO Jim Stafford, just signed to host his summer TV program, was intent on radically changing the variety show concept. "I would really love to beat the standard . . . formula, where a guy comes out, does a song, brings on a guest, they sing a song, they do a skit," he said. He considered such off-the-wall ideas as a 40-minute monologue from which all the musical numbers and guest bits would come. But, caught two days after he had completed shooting the last of his six shows, Stafford admitted that he had approached his series unrealistically. "It's like going to work and tellin' your boss what to do," he said. "Just being somebody who has their name on a show doesn't mean they have total control — it doesn't happen. But I'm not complainin'!" The illustrated monologue didn't get very far, it was judged impractical. Stafford's skit with an imaginary little man in his guitar, which he had hoped would be a regular feature, was also rejected. ("We discovered you can't go very long periods of talking to an open door in your guitar"). And, although Stafford resisted in the beginning, dance numbers became a feature ("We needed action and size") But in the end, Stafford was happy with his product. "There's a look to the show that's colorful but not wild, and there's a constant feel that there's an audience present. It makes the show more alive and believable. And ABC is happy enough to be considering Stafford as a spring-time replacement. Jim summed up his TV experience by portraying himself as a student who had just passed a cram course: "I learned a lot about being 'TV funny.' I learned, too, that my medium is extra large."

IT WAS A SCENE out of '62: Bob Dylan encamped in a village cafe, scribbling into a notepad as he guzzled coffee — his nervous energy revealing itself in his constant toe-tapping. But it happened just recently, and Dylan has already recorded the result of that evening's labor, "The Ballad of Joey Gallo," with Daye Mason and his band. The 10-minute song about the slain Mafia member is just one of at least four tunes that Dylan has recently written and recorded in New York. Titles were not available on the others, although one is believed to be a love song called "Isis" that Dylan performed at the Other End. Eric Clapton, Kokomo and Emmylou Harris also joined Dylan in the studio, reportedly for a song each. Dylan is said to have asked especially for Harris, who flew in from Los Angeles. There was no word whether or not any of the songs would be released.

ELTON JOHN has finished recording his next album at Caribou Ranch, outside Denver. There are nine cuts — seven rockers and two ballads. Titles include "Grow Some Funk of Your Own" and "Yell Help." The album, still untitled, is planned for fall release. A British newspaper reports that John is likely to star in an autobiographical film based on his "Captain Fantastic" album later this year, with Alan Aldridge (who provided the album's artwork) doing the animation sequences. Elton's L.A. office denied the story . . . Plans to release the Paul Simon-Art Garfunkel collaboration single, "My Little Town," have been shelved. Simon's new single, "Gone at Last," features Phoebe Snow singing the high parts that Bette Midler was supposed to have sung, until, as we heard it, the Divine Miss M and the Rhymin' Mr. S had a difference of opinion.

THEY GOT IT: The J. Geils Band had a less-than-pleasant encounter with a portion of their Saratoga Springs, N.Y., audience. After opening act Muddy Waters failed to show, the band performed a longer - than - scheduled 75-minute set, including the encore number, "Give It to Me." But after they left the stage, about 100 fans, demanding more music, pelted the stage with bottles and chairs, attacked the drum set, overturned an organ and toppled an amplifier into the orchestra pit. Afterwards, a band spokesman said damage to the equipment amounted to $5,000 . . . On a brighter note, the group members are stars in a film called "Postcards aka Shake Down," which vocalist Peter Wolf said would be released in the fall. He described it as a "science fiction documentary . . . some of it filmed in concert, but most of it behind closed doors." . . . Columbia Records probably wishes that the movie, "That's the Way of the World," would have stayed behind closed doors. The movie features appearances by Earth, Wind and Fire, whose soundtrack album has been a big seller for Columbia. The movie, descibed by producer Sig Shore as a "compilation of the graft, greed and sub-rosa activities of a fictional record company," comes two years after Clive Davis was fired as president of Columbia on the charge that he misused company funds. It stars heavyweights Harvey Keitel and Bert Parks. A Columbia publicist described her company's stance: "Our interest is in the soundtrack. We don't promote movies. Besides," she added, "it's not a good film."

A ONE-SHOT OPERA

A single performance of Mozart's charming and lighthearted comic opera, Cosi Fan Tutte, wil bel presented tonight at 8 at Saanich-Cedar Hill Community Centre on Cedar Hill.

That the Courtenay Youth Music Camp's Opera Workshop production is being seen here is the result of arrangements made by its conductor, Victoria Symphony maestro, Laszlo Gati.

Opera workshops at Courtenay have been outstanding in the past two years and resulted in lively and appealing productions.

Mozart's Cosi, with its exuberant flow of melodic delights, has been produced by Irving Guttman, who has guided most of the Vancouver Opera association performances.

Featured in the cast are Canadian and United States operatic students Ruth Hwang, Olyn Shipman, Bette Cosar, Wolfgang Este, Maitland Peters and Donald Oddie.

Parole Granted

A man charged with attempting to hijack a Pacific Western airplane and extort $2 million has been granted a day parole program from Riverview Hospital on the lower mainland.

A cabinet order made public today allows Chris Nielsen, 27, to start on a pre-release program from the mental institution.

Nielsen was found not guilty of the charges by reason of insanity April 17, 1974, in Vancouver.

The cabinet order said evidence shows Nielsen has recovered from mental ilness and he now will be allowed to take a job outside the hospital under a strict set of regulations.

In January, 1973, a man toting a toy pistol took control of a PWA Convair and threatened to detonate two bombs unless $1 million was handed over for the people of North Vietnam.

The plane landed in Vancouver to let off passenges and a Vancouver city policeman, masquerading as a PWA official, subdued the hijacker.

Federal Policy Ignored

TORONTO (CP) — Organizers of an international track meet decided Monday night to disregard federal government policy and let South African athletes compete.

The Canadian Masters Association (CMA) reversed an earlier decision on South Africa after athletes from many countries threatened to boycott the World Masters Meet, which begins today.

The earlier decision to bar the 14 South Africans, who paid their own way to the meet, was made after the federal government said it would withhold a promised $32,000 grant for the event.

A spokesman for Health Minister Marc Lalonde said the government would cut off funds for any Canadian sports event that included teams from South Africa because Canada "will not support apartheid."

The week-long amateur meet is expected to draw more than 1,400 athletes over the age of 40 from 32 countries.

Both the original ruling and Monday's change of heart brought threats from spokesmen for national teams that they would pull their teams out of the meet.

A spokesman for the five-member Yugoslavian team said it probably would withdraw after Monday's decision because his government opposes its athletes competing with South Africans.

And Sylvester Stein, a British team member, said he doubted all countries would take part after Monday's ruling.

Earlier, David Pain, founder of the meet and coach of the 250-member U.S. team, said he would pull his team out unless the South Africans took part.

But he said many other athletes might refuse to compete over the issue.

The 53-year-old lawyer from San Diego said the Canadian government had no right to ban the athletes because they entered the event as individuals, each paying his own $2,000 air fare and expenses.

Pain said the athletes might raise the $32,000 among themselves to repay the government grant, but the CMA said it did not know if or how the money would be returned.

Because of a communications breakdown, it wasn't until the South Africans arrived here Sunday night that they learned of the government decision, made less than two weeks ago.

CMA president Don Farquharson announced a 6-5 vote in favor of admitting South Africa at Monday's meeting.

Adanacs Didn't Require Magic

By D'ARCY KAVANAGH
Times Staff

COQUITLAM — Coquitlam Adanacs didn't require any witches' brew Monday night to maintain their spell over Victoria Shamrocks at Coquitlam Sports Centre.

All they basically needed to beat the Shamrocks for the fourth time in as many outings here this season was Daryl Sauve, Jim Aitchison and a little co-operation from the Irish themselves.

Sauve provided the goaltending heroics while Aitchison scored five times as the Adanacs won 13-10 in an exciting game before a sparse crowd of 317.

The triumph evened their best-of-five Western Lacrosse Association playoff at one game each. The third contest will be played Saturday at Memorial Arena with the fourth game back here next Monday.

Winner of the series will take on the winner of the New Westminster-Vancouver semi-final, which opens tonight in Richmond, the site of all home Vancouver games in the series.

Had it not been for a third-period seizure by the Shamrocks Monday, the Adanacs might well have trailed two games to none in the series.

The Irish started off the final 20 minutes in grand style. Mike Beaulac scored at the 3:35 mark to give Victoria a 9-8 edge.

That was the last time the Shamrocks held the lead. They went straight downhill from there.

Architect of the Coquitlam rally in the final period was the club's captain, Jim Aitchison.

The veteran defenceman scored three of his five goals in the third period, two of them on power plays with Victoria's Rick Lapointe in the penalty box. Lapointe was brought up for the game from the Esquimalt junior "B" team.

Victoria still had a chance to win in the last minute but a complete defensive collapse allowed Coquitlam to score the game's final two goals and take the decision.

"Our main problem in that third period was that we kept backing in," said Victoria coach Archie Browning after the contest.

Browning was also disappointed in his club's lack of offence, in contrast to the performance Saturday when the Irish won 16-7.

In that one, they had 76 shots on the Coquitlam goal. Monday they managed 25 less.

"We just weren't moving the ball around well enough," added Browning, "and you can see that by the fact we had only 14 assists on the 10 goals."

Browning was also irritated by the officiating and one call in particular. That one was a first-period misconduct to Coquitlam's Rhys Parsons for swinging his stick at players on the Victoria bench.

"Parsons walks down from his bench after a goal and swings his stick at our bench and gets a misconduct," said Browning. "MacNeil (Ron of Victoria) slashes one of their players two weeks ago and gets fined $100."

Besides Aitchison, Coquitlam got two goals and three assists from Mike Mushins. Dan Holte, Dave May, Harry Powless, Mike Mitzel, Dennis Nagy and Parsons added singles.

Pete Rushton and Beaulac led Victoria with two goals apiece. Ranjit and Jeevan Dillon, Jim Browne, Jerry Kustaski, Tom Somner and MacNeil each scored once.

Any Lure Will Do You, Even Buzz Bombs—Twice!

Fishing anyone? And no, there is no winner from this corner, again, in the Export "A" world salmon championships. So what else is new? For once those starting buttons were hit on all those boats, down, down went the lunkers, and that's where most of them stayed.

Still, when it comes to selecting what lure to use for a chance of this magnitude — let's face it, the $25,000 would have come in handy — it's to each his own and the winners don't always agree on the same method either. Rather, there is usually a wide divergence. Think not? Well, check the following finny facts.

When Ken Mayea of Duncan won the big prize in 1973, he was drift mooching near Bold Bluff, a favorite spot every year. He was using plug cut herring with a single hook and oddly enough his fish weighed 33 pounds, five ounces, the same as this year's winner caught by Earl Norum of Delta. Norum, incidentally, used strip.

Last year, Cowichan Bay didn't produce the winner, but the leader until just five minutes before Saturday's deadline was Bob Penny of Nanaimo and how he got his 33:01 spring is a story on initiative and improvisation.

He hadn't been on the water more than a few minutes when, while fishing with a planer, his gear got caught in a tide rip and flipped right out of the boat.

So he hooked up a strip-casting rod with 20-pound test line and 15-pound leader, a dodger, four ounces of weight and a pink and white hootchie. Bingo! Five minutes later the fish hit. Then the line got fouled with two other boats, on his own bow cleat, his net was too small, and he needed help to get the lunker into the boat. It was noted then that the treble hook on the hootchie was missing and the single hook was straightened out . . . and well, that's how Bob won a camper.

This year, it looked for a moment as if Cowichan might produce the winner when Jim Young of Port Alberni, fishing just inside the north boundary marker with only 30 feet of line and tyee-size herring strip in a teaser, hooked his 29-pound, 14-ounce fish. It was still good enough for second and now Jim and his fishing partner of "14 or 15 years," Kevyn Jacobsen, are awaiting the Export A derby at Port Alberni on the Labor Day weekend.

Supervisors at a mill in Port Alberni, "we fish everywhere together," and who catches the most fish? "Kevyn," said Young. And they obviously know what fishing is all about, for a few days earlier in a four-day outing at Quadra Island, Kevyn's boat accounted for 59 fish. The toughest part for Young was sitting through Sunday hoping his fish would stand up for second. "My stomach keeps turning over," he said.

So there really is more than one way to catch a salmon? You bet. And if you don't like strip, why not do what Bob Babych and Dallas Lane of Port Alberni have found to be a lucrative method. They are the consistent ones. They use buzz bombs and it has paid off with two prizes, 10th in 1974 and fifth this year.

"Last year, when we started buzz bombing off Separation Point, everyone thought we were crazy," said Bob. "But at 6:27 we had weighed in a 27-pound, five-ounce salmon. This year we decided we'd try the same thing again. It worked. And at 6:20 we had a 28.1-pound spring, and we caught it in almost exactly the same place."

And oh, yes, they broke their net on the fish and had to buy a new one. Last year, Babych won power tools and split with Lane on a cash rebate; this year their fifth-place prize is a trip to anywhere on the Pacific Western Airlines schedule and valued about $1,000. And Bob caught the fish again too. It isn't often a prize winner repeats. Bob and Dallas figure to try again next year. With buzz bombs, what else? Or as Bob said: "I guess they won't be laughing at us now."

Otherwise, this was the eighth year for the salmon championships and the only winners most of the time have been the fishermen. The derby didn't show a profit in the first five years, although it had a record entry of 12,900 in 1970. There was a small profit in 1973 which went for salmon research, and a slight loss last year. This summer the entry fee was raised to $12, over 8,000 contestants took part and a profit is anticipated.

Next year? That's for all the losers. Hi, fellas! But I still can't understand it. I was buzz bombing . . . at Separation Point . . . had the right color . . . same as Babych . . . and didn't even snag a tree branch. That was last year's story.

WASCANA LAKE GEESE DIVE-BOMB CANOEISTS

REGINA (CP) — Canoeists at the Western Canada Summer Games Monday found themselves trapped in something resembling a Keystone Kops movie as they contended with infuriated geese, upset canoes, chilling rain and, as the final frustration, a decision by officials to wipe out evening results.

The day was particularly maddening for Alberta and Saskatchewan canoeists, who were shut out of first place in all the events as British Columbia paddlers swept nine events and Manitoba took two.

The first sign of ill fortune came when a bus driver dropped the Alberta team on the wrong side of the lake. After a lengthy delay while Canadian forces personnel arranged transportation, the team arrived 30 minutes late.

No sooner had the first races begun than the pampered geese of Wascana Lake seemed to turn into dive bombers, zipping low over the water to harass canoeists. But after finding out the strangers could not be shoved back to shore, the geese gave up.

Even with such external handicaps removed, Alberta and Saskatchewan paddlers found themselves having a tough time staying afloat and many were dumped in the calm waters.

The reason, officials said, was their lack of practice in the wooden craft used in the event. The canoeists' previous experience was in cheaper, but more stable, fibreglass boats.

Somehow, nevertheless, the afternoon races were completed — with many results noting that certain entries "did not finish," due to upsets — and after a supper break the indominitable paddlers returned.

They found a hard, driving rain that soon left them soaked and chilled while they waited for the evening events to start.

After a lengthy delay, the meet resumed, but several events later the teams were informed that officials had decided to cancel the evening and re-run the events today.

"It figured," said one observer.

Victoria Athletes Help B.C. to First-Day Lead

REGINA (CP) — British Columbia athletes took command of the track and field competition on the opening day of the Western Canada Summer Games Monday, winning seven of eight events.

The province is expected to capture the majority of the track and field events, providing a strong opening bid for the overall team championship of the seven-day summer games competition.

Murray Keating, 23, of Victoria started the B.C. victory parade by beating two teammates to win the hammer throw award of excellence. Keating hurled the hammer 63.50 metres to win the first track and field gold. Scott Neilson, 18, of Vancouver set a Canadian junior record when he heaved the hammer 63.38 metres to finish second. Gary Salmond of Vancouver was third.

Keating was followed to the victory podium by Gerald Tesch for the triple jump, Al Dukowski for the 200-metres, Patti Loverock for the 100 metres, Alan Kane for the pole vault, Laurie Kern for the javelin, and the B.C. men's 4x400 metres relay team, which included Tom Michell of Victoria. The only non-B.C. winner was Louis Groarke of Alberta in the 10,000 metres.

Victoria's Tom Griffin placed first in the second heat of the men's 800 metres in 1:54.66 while Brian Hawksworth of Victoria won the first heat of the 400 metre hurdles, covering the distance in 59.26 seconds.

In the cycling events, Victoria's Tom Morris helped the B.C. team to first place in the 100-kilometre road race, covering the distance in 2:15.25 to finish ahead of Manitoba and Alberta. Vancouver - cyclist Max Grace, Doug Hawley, Roger Sumner and Bill Wild completed the B.C. team.

In other events, B.C. defeated Saskatchewan, 7-1, in the first round of women's field hockey; B.C. topped Saskatchewan, 18-6, in water polo; and downed Saskatchewan, 7-0, in the first round of the soccer competition.

Most of the 23 sports included in the event will be held over a period of three days, with Wednesday finishes for boxing, basketball, fencing, field hockey, men's volleyball, soccer, track and field and water polo.

Finishing Sunday, final day of the games, will be archery, diving, equestrian events, gymnastics, modern pentathalon, shooting, swimming, team handball, women's volleyball, weightlifting and wrestling.

Grexton's Blast Wrecks Royal Oak

Seaboard Construction needed just one hit Monday to win the opening game of their best-of-five Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League semi-final at Central Park.

The homer was the only hit off losing pitcher Ken Fox, who struck out seven. Phil Berry scattered four hits for the victory.

In Sidney Men's League playoffs Monday at Sanscha Park, Ernie Holness' sixth-inning, grand-slam homer sparked Seaboard Properties to a 7-4 triumph over Harvey's Sporting Goods.

Baker Pair After Records

Victoria McDonalds' Kevin Alexander will likely be the centre of attraction tonight when the Western Canada Junior Lacrosse League regular season ends at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

With 204 points this season, Alexander needs just two points against Richmond Roadrunners tonight to set a Canadian junior lacrosse scoring record.

The present mark of 205 was set this season by former McDonald Dan Green, now with Peterborough of the Ontario Lacrosse Association.

Alexander's linemate, Bob Cool, will also be bidding for a record tonight. The Bakers' captain needs four assists to better the league mark of 98 established this season by Mike Holden of Burnaby.

PROSECUTOR BELIEVES PRINCIPLE ESTABLISHED

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Dave Forbes of Boston Bruins "behaved in a dangerous manner towards another person," but he is not a danger to society, said the prosecutor who decided to drop aggravated assault charges brought against Forbes for his conduct in a National Hockey League game.

"We have now established the principle that an individual's participation in an athletic contest does not exempt him from prosecution for his conduct," Hennepin County Attorney Gary Flakne said Monday.

Forbes, 26, was indicted and tried for allegedly hitting North Stars hockey player Henry Boucha with his hockey stick during a game Jan. 4, but the trial ended July 18 in a hung jury.

Jurors said the final vote had been 9 to 3 in favor of conviction on a lesser charge of simple assault.

Flakne said he decided not to retry Forbes because the community is "extremely split" on the matter of violence in professional sports and that a second jury would probably not be able to reach agreement on a verdict.

Flakne said he had talked to Clarence Campbell, president of the NHL, and told him that similar acts would not be tolerated. He said Campbell did not say anything about whether NHL rules might be altered.

Several Swim Stars Decline Trip to Games

CALGARY (CP) — Steve Pickell of Vancouver and Nancy Garapick of Halifax, Canada's top-ranked international swimmers, removed themselves Monday from consideration for the Pan-American Games and the result was a long list oof surprises for those named to the team.

The selections were announced at an athlete's function concluding the 1975 Canadian championships and Pan-American Games trials at which Pickell won four championships and Garapick two.

On the final day, Wendy Quirk of Montreal and Bruce Robertson of Vancouver captured 100-metre butterfly championships, Joann Baker of Thunder Bay, Ont., and Graham Smith of Edmonton captured 200-metre breaststroke championships, Michael Ker of Vancouver won the men's 1,500-metre freestyl and Shannon Smith of New Westminster, B.C., won the women's 800-metre freestyle.

It was the second championship each for Quirk, Baker, Ker and Smith.

Ker joined a long list electing not to compete at Mexico City in October and the other three were named to the 30-member team, made up of 17 men and 13 women.

Graham Smith's inclusion was a surprise because he was aching knees. His sister Susan, who coaches Graham and sister Becky Smith along with Cheryl Gibson at Edmonton's Olympians, said her brother and sister both would miss the Mexico trip.

However, she changed her mind when the selection committee agreed to let both withdraw if doctors agreed it would be for the best. Becky has been bothered with allergies, bronchitis and general weariness following her recent appearance in the world championships at Cali, Colombia.

The replacements for Canada's first-liners did not know until the last minute they would be going to the Pan-Am Games.

Derek Cathro, 19, an engineering student at the University of Alberta, said his surprise international trip would force him to miss his first semester, "but I don't mind."

"I thought I'd be lucky to make the team to go to Britain."

Karen Second

Miss Rushcall covered the distance in 1:07.36 to finish .06 seconds behind winner Sue Sloan of Stettler, Alta.

Pity Joe Schultz; Tigers Can't Make It Past Third

By The Associated Press

In the hot and uncomfortable dog days of August, Joe Schultz has the easiest job in baseball.

Schultz is third base coach of Detroit Tigers, who haven't needed a third base coach in their last three American League games.

The Tigers bowed to the Texas Rangers and Gaylord Perry 7-0 Monday night, becoming the first Detroit club to suffer three consecutive shutouts— one short of the major league record—and extending their team record to 16 losses in a row.

The Tigers haven't scored in 29 innings. They managed only five hits off Perry and only Aurelio Rodriguez, who doubled in the eighth inning, made it as far as second base.

He was promptly cut down trying to take third when a pitch rolled a few feet away from catcher Jim Sundberg.

The Tigers didn't get a runner past first on Sunday as Minnesota's Bert Blyleven four-hit them and the last time Schultz saw a familiar face was in the eighth inning of Saturday's five-hit shutout by Minnesota's Dave Goltz when Rodriguez made it all the way to third—on an error, wild pitch and an infield out.

In Monday's other American League games, Oakland A's edged Boston Red Sox 4-3, Baltimore Orioles blanked Kansas City Royals 4-0, California Angels whipped New York Yankees 8-1 and Minnesota Twins outslugged Milwaukee Brewers 8-7.

Detroit manager Ralph Houk stocked his line-up with lefthanded batters against Perry but righthanders Rodriguez and Willie Horton collected four of the Tigers' five hits.

The Tigers aren't winning and aren't scoring, and they aren't fielding very well, either. Left fielder Dan Meyer overran a fly ball which went for a double and first baseman Jack Pierce committed two errors—he booted a grounder and dropped a pop foul—in one inning, giving him 13 in 50 games.

Toby Harrah's two-run homer in the second inning was all the support Perry needed.

Vida Blue blanked Boston for seven innings and then needed help from three relievers following a long-ball attack in the eighth. The Red Sox struck suddenly on a home run by Fred Lynn, Jim Rice's single and Carlton Fisk's homer.

Paul Lindblad and Jim Todd each retired a batter with the potential tying run on third base in the ninth inning as the A's increased their lead to 6½ games over Kansas City in the AL West. The Red Sox had their East Division lead over Baltimore cut to six games.

In the National League Cincinnati Reds prefer to bludgeon the opposition with base hits, but a little fancy footwork now and again doesn't hurt.

Monday night the fancy feet belonged to slugging catcher Johnny Bench. Bench made it to third base on an infield grounder in the fifth inning and Chicago Cubs never recovered, eventually falling to the Reds 9-3.

The Reds, trailing 3-1, picked up a run when Pete Rose doubled, Ken Griffey singled and Joe Morgan hit into a force play to score Rose.

Bench then grounded to Bill Madlock at third but was safe when first baseman Andy Thornton came off the bag too soon.

Morgan tried to go all the way to third on the play but was thrown out and Madlock, thinking the side was retired, rolled the ball to the mound. The Cubs trotted toward the dugout but Bench headed for third.

In Monday's other National League games, Los Angeles Dodgers whipped Philadelphia Phillies 7-1, Pittsburgh Pirates clubbed Atlanta Braves 8-1, San Francisco Giants bombed Montreal Expos 9-2, Houston Astros dumped St. Louis Cardinals 7-2 and New York Mets beat San Diego Padres 8-4.

Gorge Regains Share of Lead

Gorge Hotel defeated Kubiceks 4-1 Monday at Lambrick Park to regain a share of first place in the Victoria Senior Amateur League.

Mike Squire sparked the Gorge attack with his ninth home run of the season while Pete Jolley pitched a three-hitter to earn the victory.

The win tied Gorge with Farmer Construction with both clubs having one game left. Gorge takes on Greaves Movers tonight and the Farmers meet Kubiceks Friday.

Should they finish in a tie, they would play a playoff game to decide first place. Otherwise, the opening game of a best-of-three semi-final series between Greaves and the runner-up club will take place Thursday.

Garbage Taxes Protested

A group of condominium owners in Oak Bay is protesting paying taxes towards garbage collection when they don't get municipal service.

Twenty owners of apartments at 2095 Oak Bay Avenue sent a petition to council asking for consideration of a rebate on taxes to cover garbage disposal.

The petitioners said Cypress Disposal Limited services the building and is paid by the apartment owners.

"Since a portion of the tax levy is used for garbage collection, it would seem logical that residents who are otherwise paying for this service should be refunded that amount," said Mrs. Mario Peacey, chairman of the council of owners.

Council referred the petition to its Committee B.

Traffic Light Planned

A traffic light will be installed at the realignment of Bee Street and Cadboro Bay Road near the Oak Bay Recreation Centre, a ratepayer will be told.

Mrs. M. F. Reid, 2182 Florence, wrote Oak Bay council saying traffic is "bad enough now" and is "going to be tremendously increased." She was also concerned that Foul Bay Road traffic will use the road to the recreation centre to avoid traffic lights at Foul Bay and Cadboro Bay-Fort intersection.

Ald Doug Watts said later the new light was already planned and it will be synchronized with the lights at the intersection of Foul Bay and Cadboro Bay-Fort.

PURCHASES APPROVED

Oak Bay council approved purchase of $13,633 of supplies for the recreation centre Monday night and referred purchases totalling $28,530 to its Committee A.

Approved were a variety of tools and equipment and carpet. Referred to committee were suggested purchases of kitchen and bar supplies.

Total requests for equipment purchases to date amount to $187,926 with the budget allowing $210,000.

Salmon Bootlegged

VANCOUVER (CP) — Indians using nets harvested enough salmon from the Fraser River under native food fishing permits in 1974 to provide each Indian in the Fraser Valley with 7.3 pounds of salmon a day for a year.

The catch was legal but much of the fish was sold off the reserves, say federal fisheries officials.

The problem recurs each year as Indians affirm their traditional rights to fish for food and federal fisheries officers try to prevent bootleg salmon entering the commercial market.

About 70,000 salmon disappeared between Mission and Hell's Gate in the Fraser Canyon, about 100 miles northeast of here, a week ago as fisheries officers counted more than 50 legal nets in one 14-mile stretch of river.

On Saturday, another 5,000 fish were taken legally in the Indians' nets.

The figures, supplied by the International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission, which regulates the Fraser River run, and the fisheries branch officers, provides an indication of the scope of the problem.

Commercial fishing of Fraser sockeye and pink runs was closed last week because of inadequate escapement of fish returning to spawn.

The commission said during the weekend that a police-supported crackdown on poaching is expected to bring it under control and opened the fishery from 3 p.m. Sunday to 8 a.m. Wednesday.

The decision to provide police protection for fisheries officers was made last week as bootlegging of legally-caught fish and poaching — illegal fishing during weekly closed periods — have become big business as inflation increases salmon prices.

"To start off with, most of the fish are taken legally by Indians fishing under food fishing permits," says fisheries district supervisor Lyle Freeman.

There are also white poachers who set unlicensed nets and illegal nets set by persons unknown.

"Then at the other end, we have the public buying fish from the poachers. They don't see anything wrong with it and that makes for a problem.

FISHING VOTE

Results of the coastwide vote of fishermen on a new offer by the Fisheries Association of B.C. will be released in Vancouver at 6 p.m. today.

The fishermen, members of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union, which has been on strike for three weeks, voted Monday and today on the latest company offer of 62 cents a pound for sockeye salmon, a 10 cents a pound increase from last year. The offer also provides a one cent a pound increase during the second year of the contract.

The union's negotiating committee has recommended that fishermen reject the offer. The offer is the third made so far to the fishermen's section of the union.

Elgin Neish, secretary treasurer of the Greater Victoria local of the union, said today about 20 area fishermen voted here Monday on the offer.

Neish said the majority of the 70 paid-up members of the Victoria local are in the northern fishing areas and vote with whichever local they are closest to.

BRONFMAN

Evidence Sought That Son Alive

Times News Services

YORKTON HEIGHTS, N.Y. — The family of kidnapped Samuel Bronfman II, the 21-year-old heir to the $1.7-billion Seagram's liquor fortune, said today they would like evidence the youth is "alive and well" but might pay a ransom anyway.

A family spokesman, speaking to reporters in front of the tree-shrouded family estate in Yorktown Heights, N.Y., said the family was "still waiting with concern for some evidence that these people do have Sam and that he's alive and well."

Asked if the youth's father, Edgar Bronfman, chairman of the Seagram liquor empire, was demanding such evidence before paying the ransom, the spokesman said, "that's a little too strong."

The spokesman said "Certain instructions" were given in a ransom note delivered Monday. He said the instructions "can be recognized by the abductors . . . and we have complied with that demand."

The spokesman refused to give further details but said the family had received "no evidence whatsoever that they have Sam and he is alive and well. We want to know he's okay. We haven't had that yet and expect to get it."

Target: Illegal Water Users

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Saanich will get tough with residents who are illegally using water from the municipality's waterways.

The environment committee decided Monday to ask the provincial government's water rights branch to stop issuing licences — or updating them — without referring to Saanich.

Dr. Bob Langford, Saanich's consultant on its restoration of waterways program, said department officials told him they know people are using water illegally.

Ald. Sandy Noel said people holding a water rights licence have to pay a fee each year.

"If you don't pay for three years it (the licence) can be revoked," he added.

Langford said today there are 170 Saanich residents holding water licences, many of whom have no need of them because they are now hooked up to the water board's system.

He said he hoped some of these licences would be phased out.

Some of the people using water illegally, he added, are in the Tod, Colquitz and Viaduct Creek areas, as well as Prospect Lake.

Langford said residents using water illegally could be fined under the provincial government's Water Act at the instigation of Saanich.

A map is being prepared detailing where water is being taken illegally. A copy of the map will be given the water rights branch.

On the urging of chairman Afd. John McDonald, the committee also agreed to write Mayor Jean Butler of Central Saanich asking her for talks on the problem of water being pumped from Elk Lake for Saanich Peninsula residents.

"I would like to see a general discussion," McDonald said, "Let's see what efforts we can make to solve this problem."

Saanich is alarmed at the loss of water from the lake which jeopardizes swimmers and boaters using the lake and, just as important, threatens the municipality's extensive program of restoring fish stocks in the municipality's waterways.

Ald Sandy Noel, who with Mayor Ed Lum represents Saanich on the Greater Victoria Water Board, was pessimistic about getting Central Saanich co-operation.

"I hope you have better success than we did in 1970 (when Noel and water commissioner Ron Upward met Central Saanich to try and persuade them to join the water board system)," he told McDonald, "There is one obstacle. Central Saanich just doesn't want to pay for water. It's as simple as that."

Parks superintendent Frank Andrews told the committee that if the drain of water from Elk Lake continues at the present rate "water will cease to flow Oct. 12 or thereabout. The water will be below the level of the dam and we will have to pump."

Andrew said his department had three irrigation pumps on hand which could be brought into use.

Andrews said the water level on the lake is falling so badly that stumps left half a century ago are being bared.

He said high-speed boats, if they leave their designated area on the lake, could hit stumps.

Noel and Langford felt that the $10 million, which Central Saanich Ald. David Hill claims it will cost to hook up the Saanich Peninsula to the water board's system, is way out of line.

Noel said he estimated it would cost $120,000 to lay pipe from the water board's system to the Central Saanich pumping station.

"I'm prepared to go to the water board and ask their support in putting this (12-inch duct tile pipe) in," he said, "The water board has no major projects now, apart from the peninsula."

TOWN TALK

Never let it be said that our fine Canadian Post Office doesn't communicate.

Why, only yesterday (Aug. 11) Town Talk received a form letter from the local postal authorities, presumably so that we could inform our readers that mail delivery and post office wicket services would be cancelled on a statutory holiday.

Unfortunately the holiday in question was B.C. Day, Aug. 4.

The envelope was date-stamped July 21, so it took 20 days to reach us a mile or so away. Let's see, that works out to an average rate of progress of about 88 yards per day — or a little over three yards per hour.

Even the sluggish tortoise, says our encyclopedia, has been clocked at more breathtaking speeds than that.

Just how much money there is in the Socred war chest has produced some acrimonious debate in the past but we can assume there's $1,000 for sure.

The news bulletin of the Esquimalt Social Credit Constituency Association says former premier W. A. C. Bennett has announced the membership contest, which runs from Aug. 1 to Oct. 15. Whoever signs the most new members gets a cheque for $500. Second prize is $300 and third is $200.

The local association has launched its own bumper sticker slogan contest but the prize is a little more prosaic — dinner for two.

Maybe a slogan for the slogan contest could be "Food for Thought."

Thump-thump-thump went the vehicles, in all shapes and sizes and the thumping was a surprise addition to motorists who patronized the Town and Country shopping centre at the weekend.

While the drivers got their thumps, the pedestrians walking across the road from the sidewalk to the parking area breathed a lot easier as the speeding decreased markedly.

A curious mall visitor took 15 minutes out and watched the "spectacle of the thumps" and witnessed at least a half-dozen "sports cars" bottoming, many heads hitting the roofs and a steady stream of unprintable adjectives directed at the speed curbs . . . May other shopping centres follow suit.

Is the country in deeper financial trouble than we thought?

Green Light On Peninsula Well Study

Central Saanich aldermen decided Monday night to undertake a $10,000 preliminary well water study on their own if necessary but to invite peninsula municipalities and water districts to take part.

Sidney water district has already indicated it will share in the costs and it seems likely there will be other partners among four more water districts and other municipalities.

The study will provide an expert appraisal of the peninsula's capacity to meet water needs from a system of deep wells. It will be undertaken by the Vancouver firm of Piteau Gadsby MacLeod Ltd.

Concern over water supply on the peninsula has grown this summer with the heavy drainage from Elk Lake combined with an unusually dry season.

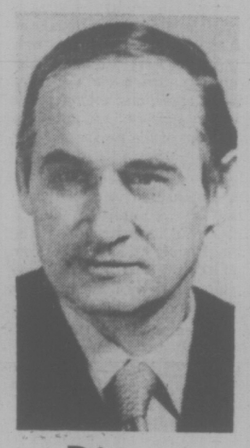
The Vancouver consultants suggest that up to 6 million gallons a day could be pumped from fissures up to 1,000 feet under the peninsula. Costs of tapping the deep sources and a distribution system have been estimated at about $500,000.

The alternative facing the peninsula is to join the Greater Victoria water district's system, which is supplied from Sooke, and one estimate puts the cost of extending this system as high as $10 million.

The $10,000 preliminary study is "a reasonable approach," Central Saanich Mayor Jean Butler said today. "If we don't do this, we're just back to square one."

Council's water committee, which is made up of full council, voted unanimously Monday night for the study. That recommendation still requires formal approval at the next council meeting.

Ald. David Hill, who is chairman of the committee as well as the Peninsula Water Committee, is meeting with peninsula water district representatives on the matter Wednesday.



Dietze Goes North

A new post in the Northwest Territories has been taken by Sig Dietze, head of construction and maintenance for Greater Victoria School District.

His resignation was accepted by school trustees Monday night, effective Aug. 31, completing five years with the district.

Dietze will be managing director of Northwest Territories Housing Corp. at Yellowknife as of Sept. 1.

As a young immigrant to Canada, Dietze learned carpentry then went to university where he studied architecture and earned his master's degree. Last year he completed MA requirements in administration at University of Victoria evening division.

Prior to coming here, Dietze was director of lands and development for Ontario Housing Corp.

Retail Sales Brighten City Economy

Manpower demand is down but retail sales are a bright spot in the current Victoria economy, according to the July report of Canada Manpower Centre.

The report says industrial disputes affecting forestry have had little or no effect on the Victoria core, but it anticipates difficulty in Sooke, Jordan River and Port Renfrew areas and makes no mention of the enforced closure of B.C. Forest Products mills in Victoria through picketing by up-Island pulp workers.

Logging operations in the Sooke area closed because of fire hazard were expected to resume work about the third week of August.

Most major department stores, meanwhile, are enjoying sales at levels well above this time a year ago, and many smaller retailers and specialty stores are reported "pleased" at the level of spending.

Manpower said some are 20 per cent above their performance last year, but the centre points out the consumer price index is up 10.4 per cent while the retail sales index is up 13.1 per cent.

There has been a proportionately small increase in dollar volume and little effect on the number of persons employed in retail selling.

Hotels, motels and restaurants report business fair to good. Some tourists appear to be shopping for the best prices and lower-priced eating places.

Retail figures are supported by a 69 per cent rise in bank debits for the first six months over last year for a total $15.02 billion.

Finance companies say business is good as funds are loaned for holidays, cars, home furnishings and appliances, and debt consolidation, with collections normal for the period.

Rental housing is in short supply and new housing starts are below 1974, partly due to high cost of financing, the centre reports. But mortgage money is in adequate supply.

Yarrows shipyard maintains a steady work force with orders well into 1976 and there is ongoing work for machine shops, foundries and metal fabricators for the next few months.

The centre reports apple picking should be under way this week along with some potato harvesting, and farm labor is in adequate supply.

Massage Okay Or Court—Gold

Richmond businessman William Gold, who last month was denied a business licence to open a body rub parlor in Victoria, said Monday he is prepared to take the city to court if his second licence application is refused.

Gold, president of Cosmopolitan Ventures Ltd., said if he has to issue a writ it will be based on a recent B.C. Appeal Court decision that the municipality of Prince George exceeded its powers in refusing a business licence to a sex shop.

The principle involved in the two situations is the same, he said, because in both cases the municipality in effect "passed moral sentence" on the poposed business enterprises.

"They are denying me the opportunity to earn a living for my family through free enterprise," said Gold, who runs a body rub establishment in Richmond.

"They are judging me to run a house of ill-repute without having seen my operation."

Although the city finance committee initially supported Gold's application on a 3 to 1 vote, the aldermen concerned changed their minds and voted with the rest of council July 24 to reject it.

Council had been informed that the Co-ordinated Law Enforcement Unit was preparing a report for the attorney-general's department on all aspects of massage parlor operations in B.C.

Enough Pencils For 18,000

Greater Victoria School District has bought enough pencils, rulers and notebooks to get 18,000 youngsters ready for school in September.

All those school supplies go on sale next week, Monday to Friday, at six local schools.

The school district decided to sell low-cost supplies for all elementary school pupils in the district after running a successful pilot project last year, when supplies were sold to 2,700 children from seven schools.

The district is running the operation on a non-profit basis, so parents pay about 40 per cent less than the average retail price.

The supplies have been collected into kits for children of all seven grades, with the kits being prepared by Canadian Mental Health Association workers.

Prices are: Grade 1 kit, $2.60; Grade 2, $2.80; Grade 3, $5.10; Grade 4, $5.05; Grade 5, $5.90; Grade 6, $5.60; Grade 7, $5.60.

High school students will be conducting the cash sales (no cheques) from 9 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 to 3:30 p.m. all five days next week.

Ex-Mining Man Dies On 100th Birthday

Funeral will be held Wednesday in Cumberland for Edward Thomas "Ted" Searle, who died Saturday on his 100th birthday.

Searle was to have been given a big family birthday party at Holyrood House to celebrate the day, but the party was cancelled several days earlier when his condition worsened.

He died at Sandringham Hospital where he had been since June, recovering from an operation.

Born in London, Searle came to Canada in 1893, working in various places in Canada and Washington before taking the job as paymaster with a coal mining firm at Union Bay in 1916. He retired in 1947.

Following the death of his wife Caroline in 1955, Searle moved to Comox in 1962 and to Matson Lodge in Victoria in 1966.

He is survived by sons Edward and Robert of Vancouver and Arthur of Victoria.

Door's Open on Community Plan

By PETER MEDWID
Times Staff

The politicians and the planners would closet themselves behind closed doors . . . ask questions; give themselves the answers; and presto . . . a community plan . . . a plan that was "in their best interests."

But not now.

The Capital Region's planning office has gone to the people in developing the western community plan — a plan which will outline the growth and where it will spread in Colwood, Langford, Metchosin and the Millstream area of the Highlands.

Bill Huot of the region's planning office is staffing the department's first "store front" office on Jacklin Road.

It's designed so that residents can obtain information and pass along their views without having to travel to downtown Victoria.

The office is in a portable building and is open Monday to Thursday from 2 to 9 p.m. Fridays are set aside for compiling reports on the week's activities.

Huot stressed the community plan as developed so far is only in the preliminary stages . . . it sets the bare minimums and it is up the residents to help the planners fill in the blanks.

So far the response has been poor. Since the office opened July 21, 300 have walked through the doors.

"In the first week it was the people who have a vested interest — the land developers and real estate groups — but now we are getting the ratepayers themselves," says Huot.

Up to now, development in the Colwood-Langford-Metchosin area has been based on 1959 figures and "everyone has been caught in a mess . . . the highways department and telephone companies just to mention two.

"There has been uncontrolled commercial growth along the main routes and the results have been chaos in the sense of good planning.

"With this community plan — to be completed before the end of this year — the people will have a document to control their growth for the next 20 years.

"Hopefully, the plan will retain the quality of living the residents desire and maybe even correct some of the mistakes that have been made in the past," adds Huot.

He said the growth rate in the area in the past few years has been high and the planners do not see any indication of a falloff.

"There are a lot of attractions such as the rural atmosphere and open spaces, not to mention lower taxes, than in the core municipalities.

"That's why we see the population tripling in the next 20 years (it's about 20,000 now) and why we feel it's imperative that a plan be drawn up to accommodate the expected influx of residents.

Huot says that high on the list of things which must be decided, as well as the main plan, is the developing of better transportation facilities — especially the eliminating of the bottleneck at Colwood Corners on the highway — and sewers.

Leaked Information Inquiry Raises Press Freedom Issue

OTTAWA (CP) — A Commons inquiry into allegations a Liberal MP leaked confidential tax information opened Monday with a discussion over freedom of the press and the affect the hearings might have on court action in the case.

The Commons committee on privileges and elections is looking into allegations by Montreal Gazette that John Reid, parliamentary secretary to government House Leader Mitchell Sharp, leaked information on an amendment to a tax bill.

While the hearing spent most of its first session on procedures and testimony from a Commons legal authority on parliamentary privileges. Liberal members took time to turn aside Conservative suggestions that a precedent might be set lessening freedom of the press.

Bud Cullen (L—Sarnia-Lambton) said there would be no inquisition of the press. But the committee had to carry out its instructions from the House to look into complaints by Reid that the newspaper story violated his privileges as a member.

Cullen was commenting on an earlier statement by Sinclair Stevens (PC—York-Simcoe) that members should be careful of precedents.

"Committee members must not allow their meetings to become an inquisition, fraught with political overtones, into the activities of particular newspapers and their staffs and totally ignore the major questions before us," Stevens said.

Later, he told the committee he welcomed the statements by Cullen, saying it was the type of response he had hoped for. His party was concerned because Sharp had told the House the Gazette would be on trial at the hearings.

Cullen also said he worried that the committee inquiry might prejudice either side in court action arising from the case.

Reid has said he plans to sue both the Gazette and La Presse, a French-language paper which carried a translated copy of the Gazette story.

But Joseph Maigot, Parliament's resident legal expert, said there is no barrier to the committee hearing evidence while the matter is before the courts.

The Gazette reported that Reid leaked budget information but later apologized and said he had leaked information on an amendment introduced after the budget.

The story also said he shared information on lifting of an excise tax on small boats with manufacturers who could gain from the information.

Reid has denied the allegations, saying he had no secret inside information. His predictions that the excise tax would be removed were "just a good guess."

Reid is expected to testify at a meeting on Wednesday.

Committee chairman Rod Blaker said Monday one of the principal witnesses involved in the case would not be able to appear immediately.

Thomas McMillan, president of Outboard Marine Corp. of Peterborough, Ont., is recovering in hospital from serious injuries received in a July 29 accident. The committee would find out when he can appear, Blaker said.

DESIGN COMPETITION

OTTAWA (CP) — The public works department will conduct a national competition among architects for the design of the new National Gallery, to be built near the Supreme Court building overlooking the Ottawa River.

All architects in Canada are being notified of the competition through the Royal Architectural Institute of Canada and their provincial associations.

A selected group of architectural firms then will be chosen to enter the competition in September, and the design of the new building will be chosen by August, 1976.

Cost of the building cannot be estimated until a design is chosen, but some government agencies involved in the project hazard the guess that it might run to between $90 million and $100 million.

The National Arts Centre, the only comparable building project in Ottawa recently, cost $46 million by the time it was completed seven years ago. The new National Gallery is to be completed in 1980, the centenial of the gallery's founding.

The site for the gallery extends from Wellington Street to the cliff overlooking the river.

Tentative plans call for an opening on Wellington Street, with the building forming an L-shape. Extensive gallery space will open onto the river view and spread along the top, and partly down the slope, of the cliff.

Trudeau's Tax Appeal: Several Hundred at Stake

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau appears to be right when he says he stands to save several hundred dollars if he persuades the township of St. Adolphe d'Howard to reduce taxes on his 632-acre property there.

But municipal property tax assessors say it may be some weeks before the tax problem is settled.

The prime minister said at a news conference last Thursday that he would save much more than the $8 reported in news stories about the dispute with the municipality in the Laurentians, 45 miles northwest of Montreal.

Trudeau wrote the municipality last March saying he was being taxed at more than the rate set by Quebec law for farms and woodlots. He asked for money back.

Officials at St. Adolphe said in a telephone interview Monday that Trudeau's property has been taxed at two per cent of assessed value. The prime minister's complaint had been forwarded to the Montreal assessment firm of Leroux, Beaudry and Picard.

Andre St. Arnaud, an assessor with the Montreal firm, said the assessed value is $44,650.

St. Adolphe's taxes on the property therefore amount to $893 a year.

The Quebec Real Estate Act says that the annual tax for farms and woodlots including houses must not be more than one per cent of assessed value.

If Trudeau is right that his property should be classified this way, the prime minister should only be taxed $446.50. He would save $446.50.

St. Arnaud said he will be forwarding the complaint to Argenteuil County board of revision in Lachute for a ruling. The board would look at it during its September meeting.

The prime minister said he makes no apologies for asking money back as he stands to save "many hundreds of dollars a year."

It was private property and not a commercial estate. It would become commercial if he sold it or the lumber from it.

Higher Price Likely On Color TV Sets

OTTAWA (CP) — The revenue department has issued a preliminary finding of dumping against color television sets made by about 20 companies in the United States, Japan, Taiwan and Singapore.

Dumping is selling in a foreign market at prices cheaper than those charged in the home market.

The revenue department finding follows intensive lobbying by the Electronic Industries Association of Canada, representatives of domestic producers, and likely will mean higher prices for consumers.

A revenue spokesman said Monday that, effective July 31, importers of the television sets with screens 16 inches or larger must pay a provisional duty or post a bond to cover the amount by which the manufacturers are alleged to be dumping the televisions.

The federal anti-dumping tribunal has started an inquiry to decide whether the dumping of imported televisions has harmed, or may harm, the domestic industry. Public hearings will start in Ottawa Sept. 25. The tribunal has 90 days from July 31 in which to make its decision.

The association asked the government in May to restrict imports of color televisions, claiming 46 per cent of the one million sets with screens 16 inches or larger sold in Canada last year were imported.

Movement Class Aids Children

DENVER (AP) — Children with learning disabilities in speech and co-ordination are learning to overcome their difficulties through a unique dance program offered by the Denver Ballet Academy.

"The class is really a movement class for children and not ballet, though ballet and modern dance exercises are used," said Michelle O'Bryan, a dance instructor at the academy who initiated the program.

"The exercises are done more for creating body awareness and co-ordination. We do various types of exercises related to ballet or modern dance because it helps the muscles.

"Often the children have the perception problems and are unaware of the space their bodies occupy," she said.

The Denver Civic Ballet Association, through the academy, began offering the free classes for children with minimal brain dysfunction after Miss O'Bryan took an interest in the problem and underwent a year of training at the University of Colorado Medical Centre.

Some of the children are awkward and shy and suffer psychologically because they never excel, either in school or at games.

One girl who was brought to the academy by her parents did not want to participate. She was shy and cried several times, but soon she began to join in the activities and now does many things alone. Another student was unable to catch a ball, but two years later she played for her school basketball team.

A small number of colleges in the United States have begun offering dance therapy courses in recent years, but Miss O'Bryan said Denver is the first civic ballet organization to offer such a program.

Doctor Warns Of Tea Danger

MIAMI (UPI) — Tea, especially in excessive quantities, may be hazardous to your health.

This warning has been made by Dr. Julia F. Morton, who after eight years of study at the University of Miami has documented an apparent link between gastric cancer and excessive intake of tannin-rich plant brews.

She said the tannin found in plants used for both regular and increasingly popular herb brews is harmful to the body's tissues. Tannin, Dr. Morton explained, is an astringent which causes tissues to constrict and is also believed to reduce the activity of certain enzymes.

In a warning published in the bulletin of the Morris Arboretum at the University of Pennsylvania, Dr. Morton says tannin is present in peppermint tea in levels ranging from 6 to 12 per cent.

Many people, she said, drink a tea blended of peppermint and alfalfa. She said researchers have learned that alfalfa can interfere with the body's utilization of vitamin E. Dr. Morton also warned that sassafras tea contains safrole, a cardinogen now banned as a food additive.

Welch Medical Report

By Dr. WILLIAM J. WELCH

There is promising evidence at hand that post-operative blood clots (thromboses), which form silently and unpredictably in leg veins and sometimes in the deep veins of the abdominal cavity following major surgery, can be prevented with small prophylactic doses of heparin, an anticiclotting agent, which in larger doses is standard treatment for established venous thrombosis.

It is estimated that 10,000 or more surgery patients die every year in North America as a result of such "silent" blood clots.

There are few more devastating tragedies in the world of medicine than that of a patient who has weathered the hazards of a major operation, seems well on the way to recovery, and then abruptly drops dead, the victim of a pulmonary embolus, caused by an unsuspected venous thrombosis.

In such cases, a fragment embolus of the silent blood clot has travelled in the blood stream to the lung, where abruptly, like a cork, it blocks the blood supply to the lung.

When the clot fragment is big enough to shut off all the blood to the lung, death is nearly instantaneous. When the obstruction is less complete and the situation is recognized quickly enough, sometimes the clot can be removed surgically.

But now the number of such desperate fatalities may be greatly reduced if further studies verify the experience of an English surgeon at the Kings' College Hospital Medical School in London.

In 53 consecutive patients, all of whom were over 50 years of age and had to undergo repair of a groin hernia, venour thrombosis of the leg was detected in only four per cent of heparin-treated subjects, whereas it was found in 26 per cent of those who did not receive the small doses of heparin. Other studies verified these findings.

If prevention of silent thromboses by small doses of heparin results in the expected reduction of pulmonary embolism, then the question will be raised of whether all adult patients undergoing major surgery should receive such prophylaxis before, during and after surgery.

This question has yet to be finally answered, but the prospect is bright for another great advance in medicine, one that can truly be called preventive.

Free for the Asking

If you want to get a general impression of anything, particularly of an area, you should learn some of its unique features.

The 8-page illustrated folder Newfoundland — As a Matter of Fact tells you about many impressive characteristics of Canada's newest province.

For instance, Newfoundland, which includes a major portion of Labrador, has an area three times that of the other three Atlantic provinces combined. It would rank fourth in size among the States south of us, behind Alaska, Texas and California. Also, Newfoundland, our easternmost province, is as far from Italy as it is from British Columbia.

The folder also tells you that Newfoundland has an Indian burial ground that dates back 4,000 years. It also had the first court of justice in North America. This was set up by Sir Richard Whitbourne at Trinity in 1615.

And did you know that Newfoundland has 1,465 campsites and 1,230 picnic sites in its provincial parks? Since there is no ragweed pollen, Newfoundland is a haven for sufferers from hayfever.

You will also learn that economically Newfoundland is very powerful. It harbors one of the world's largest hydroelectric power developments at Churchill Falls, a $950 million project. Furthermore, the province produces $340 million worth of mineral products a year and annually exports more than $80 million worth of pulp and paper.

Pastor's Son Pulls Rank on Teacher

DEAR ABBY: I have been teaching Sunday school for five years. I teach first-grade children who are 6 years old.

My problem is the pastor's son. This child pulls rank on me at every turn I make. He lets me know that because he is the pastor's son, I can't tell him what to do.

You can imagine what this does to me and the other children. I get absolutely no cooperation from his parents. The father is merely an older replica of his son.

What can I do to remedy this situation? I am fond of my class and love to teach, but I can't take much more verbal abuse or the kicking this child dishes out. I've bent over backwards to be nice to him but get nowhere.

MISTREATED

DEAR MIS: Discipline him as though he were the son of Joe Blow. And if he doesn't shape up, tell his parents to keep the boy home, or you'll stay home.

DEAR ABBY: About that bride who wanted to lock the doors of the church five minute before the ceremony: Most cities and states have laws against locking the doors of public buildings when people are assembled in them. The reason is obvious. Sign me, FIRE MARSHALL

DEAR FIRE MARSHALL: You are right, of course. Now, why didn't I think of that?

DEAR ABBY: You gave good advice to the widow who didn't know what to tell people when they asked how her husband had died. (He committed suicide.)

I'd like to reinforce your view. Many years ago, when I was the editor of a small newspaper, one of the town's leading citizens, who was also an attorney and church leader, made some bad investments. Shortly thereafter, he killed himself.

His two daughters, who were my cherished friends, sent their boyfriends to ask me to please leave out that their father had committed suicide when his death was reported in the paper. The competing newspaper agreed to omit it if we would.

I refused, saying, "If we omit it, the girls will be living a lie for the rest of their lives. If we print the truth, it will be forgotten in 24 hours."

I published the truth and the family admitted afterward that I had done the right thing. They also bought 50 newspapers. EX-EDITOR

Computer Ends Long Lines at Supermarket

TOKYO (NYT) — A computerized supermarket, which opened here recently, has ended shoplifting, mistakes by cashiers, and the long line of customers waiting at cash registers.

On the outskirts of Tokyo, shoppers at one shop of the OK Supermarket chain push a cart with a plastic card chained to it and do their buying by looking into glass cases where the store's commodities are displayed.

This plastic card is the passport for a customer to shop here. A little bigger than a dollar bill, it has a magnetic number imprinted on it. Each customer carries her own card, which customers get at the entrance. While shopping, she puts the card into a slit beside the item she wants and pushes a button or two.

The glass-covered vending machines are connected with a computer that contains the price of every item in the store. Each time a customer inserts her card and pushes buttons, the minicomputer adds up the prices of whatever the customer has bought.

When through shopping, the customer hands the card to a cashier who feeds it to the register. In a second, the receipt pops out.

"Shoplifting is physically impossible. Once you touch a commodity, the computer remembers it no matter how you hid it or even if you eat it on the spot," said Osamu Enoki, spokesman for Pass Engineering Corporation, which installed the system.

Other merits of the system are:

—Less of a burden on cashiers, who used to complain about the dullness of the job and the numbness of their arms.

—Fewer cashiers and a reduced labor costs. A cashier at the OK Supermarket can work 15 times faster than her colleague at a conventional store.

Only two cashiers, for instance, work at this store, which sells 2,500 items; in a noncomputerized store of the same size, at least eight cashiers would be needed. Also, one man is enough to keep the vending machines filled, because whenever the stock for a certain commodity is close to running out, a red lamp in the computer room warns him.

—More available space. The commodities are tightly displayed in long, vertical cases and thus provide from 40 to 50 per cent more available space than in conventional stores, which, in Japan are jammed.

—Simplification of inventory. How many customers visited today? How much did they spend? How much inventory has the shop now? Which commodities are running out? The computer can answer such questions instantly.

Enoki said there is also, for the customer, a psychological benefit.

"It helps the privacy of the customers," he said. "Housewives, by nature, show interest in what others, particularly those whom they know, have bought. But now, they don't have to worry about being watched while waiting in line at a cashier. Before, a cashier used to take commodities out of the basket one by one to price the items. Now, she doesn't have to even glance at the basket."

The shortcomings, Enoki said, are that a customer cannot touch and examine the commodity before deciding whether or not to buy it. Once touched, the item cannot be put back. The customer must go through a cashier with it first and get a refund later.

Placebos Becoming Popular Once More

OTTAWA (CP) — Placebos, or medicines given patients to humor rather than cure them, are coming back into wide use after almost 20 years of disfavor says one expert.

"They have a place treating an illness that is in whole or in part psychological, but they do pose ethical and moral problems," said Dr. Ian Henderson, chairman of the Canadian Medical Association (CMA) committee on pharmacotherapy.

In a recent interview, Dr. Henderson said that ethically no doctor should give a placebo to a patient suffering from real pain such as in cancer or a broken ankle.

"A doctor has no right to deprive people of drugs they need."

Morally, he said, a patient should not have to pay money for an inexpensive placebo masquerading as an expensive medicine.

One way to get around this, he said, is to prescribe a weaker drug — say a non-addictive muscle relaxant instead of an addictive narcotic sleeping pill.

A good example of how placebos can be used, Dr. Henderson said, are as diet pills.

"Most diet pills are amphetamines and I usually only put a patient on them for six weeks. By that time, the dose will have to be raised.

"However, the patient has also dropped five to seven pounds, hopefully changed his or her eating habits, and so I will prescribe a placebo.

"You see, the placebo helps the patient control hunger. Hunger is a very psychological thing — if they think they won't feel hungry they won't."

Doctors have long known that if they convey confidence in a medicine, even if it is a placebo, it often will improve a patient's condition.

Two doctors at Harvard Medical School, in a recent article in the Journal of the American Medical Association, said doctors should be using placebos more widely.

Herbert Benson and Mark D. Epstein say research has shown placebos can help treat those with a variety of ills — pain, heart attacks, insomnia, rheumatoid arthritis, hay fever, headache, cough, peptic ulcer, anxiety and depression.

Daughters Changing Ideas on the Future

NEW YORK (NYT) — The other day, a fifth-grade boy in a group of children being interviewed at a private school asked, as he was about to fill out a questionnaire on job classification, what a construction worker was.

He was answered, in considerable detail, by one of the girls in his class.

How did she know so much about it, she was asked by one of the other children.

"Because," she replied, "my mother's a construction worker."

It's no news that the women's movement is changing what mothers do. But even more, it may be changing what their daughters believe they will be doing when they grow up.

Recently, 52 fifth-graders were interviewed at two schools in New York City.

Although the number of children involved was small and although one school represented a special situation in which an effort to remove sex-role stereotypes had been under way, their rather surprising answers may perhaps be taken as a straw in the wind.

For example, the time-honored choice of housewife was scarcely honored at all: Out of 32 girls, only one opted to be a housewife.

All the rest seem to assume they will be working. Further, they assume they will still be working after marriage and children. If, that is, they marry at all.

The boys presented a more moderate picture. It seemed clear, from the 20 fifth-grade boys interviewed, that their attitudes toward themselves and their futures were still largely traditional.

But they are beginning to view women's prerogatives somewhat differently. And this, in turn, appears to be influencing their views of the role of the male.

What do these children want to be when they grow up?

If they follow through on what they said, the medical schools are in for a massive influx of students within a decade.

Ten out of the 52 children chose this profession, naming everything from veterinarian to neurosurgeon. And of 8 of the 10 were girls.

The tide has not turned so far, however, that any boys said they wanted to be nurses; but then, neither did any girls.

When asked to define the women's movement, the New York youngsters said that it had to do with women wanting equal pay for equal work; with the opportunity for women to get whatever kinds of jobs they wanted; with women not being stereotyped as household drones and child raisers; with men helping more with the housework, and — a few boys pointed out — with women sharing the financial responsibilities.

"It's the women's drive for equality and freedom," said a girl.

"I think (women's liberation) is foolish because women are not trapped at home: They were always able to go out and work if they wanted to," a boy insisted.

"Women can drive buses and be scientists," said one girl from P.S. 59.

"Or do construction work," said another.

"And be President," added a third.

HIRING BEGINS

Home Tutors for Newfoundlanders

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Thousands of Newfoundlanders who cannot read or write are being given the opportunity to learn by havig tutors visit their homes.

A group of Memorial University students are involved in the project, called Teachers on Wheels, and have received a federal Opportunities for You grant of a little more than $14,000.

The objective is to build confidence in functionally illiterate adults and people unskilled in basic reading and writing.

The operators of the program say they will get a better response by visiting the homes and giving instructions on the spot, because most illiterate people feel embarrassed about their lack of education and appear uncomfortable in crowded classrooms.

Tuition is free and instructors will visit homes at any time of day or night, or on weekends.

No diplomas, certificates or grades are offered, and all that is taught is reading and writing and practical instructions such as how to fill out application forms and how to manage a driver's test.

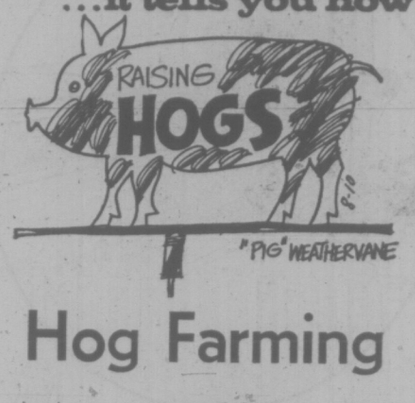
The instructors say most of their students will be school dropouts. A survey showed that in St. John's alone, with a total population of 130,000, there are 420 heads of families with Grade 8 education or less.

The students hope to reach these people through the news media and personal contacts. A contact office will be manned here five days a week.

After these people learn the basic skills, it is hoped they will have enough confidence and desire to further their education through the provincial adult education centre.

Other programs designed to educate the illiterate are under way in the province but they are conducted in a classroom atmosphere with many people present. The Teachers on Wheels program is unique in that the instructors go directly to the homes.

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS® ...it tells you how



Hog Farming Most Efficient

Farmers used to call hogs "mortgage lifters". That's because a hog is the most efficient of all farm animals for converting plant material into meat. A hog also "dresses out" a higher percentage of its live weight than beef. A word to the wise for modern homesteaders:

The old saying "root, hog, or die" came proudly from pioneer lips because they knew no self-respecting hog was about to die, even if left in the woods without grain. Hogs can live on grass and acorns.

But pigs will live much better with corn and alfalfa hay. To fatten a hog to 180 pounds takes about ten bushels of corn or the equivalent in other grains. The more hay, pasture roots, vegetables, waste fruit, etc. (a hog will eat most anything you will) you get into your porker, the less grain you'll need. But if you feed no grain, the animal's meat will be soft and of lower quality.

If you range your hogs on pasture, they'll root the sod up in a most unsightly manner. Rings in their noses stop that nasty habit, but if you're as kindhearted as I am, you'll probably keep your hogs penned in a lot where you can let them dig to their hearts' content.

If given enough living space (no less than a ten-by-ten-foot pen per six pigs) the porkers will not dirty the bedding where they sleep. Hogs are very smart and naturally housebroken. Which is more than you can say about humans.

Food prices may be rising, but you don't have to cut meat out of your diet. For the leaflet, "Cheap Meat: Survival for the Urban Carnivore," send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to The Mother Earth News, in care of the Victoria Times, 2621 Douglas. Ask for reprint No. 126.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

Today's deal is a difficult one to play correctly, and it is hard to fault our actual South declarer for failing to find the winning line of play. Had an expert been at the helm, however, he would have fulfilled the contract. Both sides vulnerable. West deals.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South

Pass

Opening lead: Ace of ♣.

West made a good decision when he elected not to open the ace of hearts. Had he made this lead, Wouth would have fulfilled his contract with ease. He would have ruffed the lead, and subsequently would have discarded his losing diamond on dummy's kind of hearts.

After West had opened the ace of clubs, he shifted to the three of diamonds. South realized that West was trying to get East on lead to give West a club ruff, so he put up dummy's ace of diamonds. He then led a trump to his ace — spurning the finesse — and promptly returned a trump, hoping that the adversely held four trumps were divided 2-2.

As is evident, West possessed three trumps. Upon winning the second trump lead with the king, he played a diamond to East's king. East then returned a club, which West ruffed for the setting trick.

South could have fulfilled his contract at trick three by employing the play known as "the coup without a name." Upon winning trick two with dummy's ace of diamonds, he should have laid down the board's king of hearts. On it he would have discarded his losing two of diamonds. West would have captured the trick with the heart ace.

It would now have been impossible for West to have gotten East into the lead for a club return. West would have led a diamond, which would have been trumped by South. Next would have come the ace of trumps, and this would have been followed by another trump, which West would have won. Upon regaining the lead, declarer would have picked up West's remaining trump, and claimed his contract.

By employing the "coup without a name," declarer would be breaking the West-to-East line of communication in diamonds. In effect, declarer would be conceding a heart trick early, instead of a diamond trick later. But, somehow, declarer failed to find the winning "coup."

SOLUTION WEDNESDAY

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By SYDNEY OMARR

For Wednesday, Aug. 13

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Dig deep for information — refuse to accept superficial explanations. Exercise your right to know. One who pulls strings is going to give you a chance for advancement. Do your job with understanding that you receive credit where due. Message will be clarified!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You get chance now to review, to apply special touches, to finish and to insert views on the record. Legal matters remain and must be considered. However, momentum is in your favor. One who cares for you will relieve you of burden.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You get "new look" at familiar subjects, persons. You can be more independent in thought, action. Leo, Aquarius persons could figure prominently. You will do some tearing down for purpose of rebuilding.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You are sensitive now to moods of those around you. Accent on ability to create, make constructive changes, get ideas on paper and work with material at hand. Aquarius, Leo persons figure prominently.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Lunar cycle is such that you get down to specifics regarding business transactions, property, taxes, insurance policies or lease. Credits, debits are evaluated. Be versatile without scattering your forces.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your ability to communicate is enhanced. Your views, opinions come across in meaningful, direct manner. Know it and express yourself with confidence. Short detour may be on agenda. Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio figure in picture.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Evaluate — find out what you want as opposed to what you need. Costs, time involved are major considerations. Key is to be analytical. Take nothing for granted. Ask questions based on personal research. Gemini, Virgo could be involved.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You understated scope of events — you do something which benefits yourself, basic security and family. Home adjustment, appraisal is in picture. News is received concerning one who means much to you. Travel and assignment are featured.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You will be active in connection with club, hospital, charitable institution. Work behind the scenes. See as it, not as others paint rosy pictures. Realistic approach brings constructive results. Pisces, Virgo are going to play key roles.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your presence is felt, your policies are put into effect, you regain greater degree of prestige. Older person, once an ally, makes statements which rebound in your favor. Some of your fondest hopes and wishes can become realities.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You receive meaningful compliment, business offer. You now can see beyond immediate problems, needs. Aries, Libra persons could be in picture. You are able to get credit due and to rid yourself of burden never your own in first place.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Highlight style, independence and originality. Get to heart of matters; go directly to source. Your own interpretations now mean more than any secondhand reports, imitations. A legal quandary will be resolved.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are dynamic, dramatic, stubborn and were literally or psychologically separated from parents at relatively early age. Aquarius, Scorpio and Leo persons play important roles in your life. January and October are your most significant months of 1975. You will recover from emotional setback — if single, marriage is on horizon. Married or single, you will be organizing a business of your own.

GARDENING

Second Sowing for Leafy Greens

During the second week of August, before the 15th if possible, a repeat sowing is made of some of the leafy vegetables used in the mid-July sowing is made of some of the leafy vegetables used in the mid-July sowings plus a few that need the cooler weather of early fall as they mature.

The leafy vegetables will include spinach, using two kinds, one of which the entire plant is lifted, the other from which leaves only are taken. The latter will take light frosts and supply nutritious greens until Christmas or after.

Swiss Chard is another leaf vegetable that gives greens most of the winter, especially when in a part of the garden sheltered from freezing northeast winds. It is used as a cooked vegetable or raw for salads. Some prefer to cook the green leaf-blades and use the heavy leaf-stems raw like celery.

Another small sowing of lettuce seed is made, this time using a winter variety such as Black-seeded Simpson. These are used after the open-garden sowings are finished. Some of the seedlings can be transplanted to a coldframe for light protection from rain.

Set three inches apart, alternate plants are used first while small, and the remainder then have room for full development.

Home gardeners using the portable coldframes recommended in this column, set out the lettuce transplants between the rows of spinach, then cover the plants with the frames in October.

A corner is always reserved for a small sowing of parsley for winter and early spring use, and any spaces between transplants, or rows, are used for small sowings of the summer type Cherry Belle radish which mature, and must be harvested, in a little under four weeks.

Two vegetables which are difficult to mature in warm summer weather are Endive and Corn Salad. Both need a well prepared soil with humus added, and are encouraged to make good growth through September and October.

Green Curled Endive is ten days later maturing than the Batavian Escarole. Both have to be tied, or covered, to blanch the hearts and remove the bitterness from the foliage. It is usual to cover three or four plants about two weeks before needed.

The seed is best sown in a square to fit a portable coldframe because the plants can easily rot if tied, or covered, when rain is on the foliage. It is difficult to have dry plants in October. Eighteen-inch spacing is necessary between plants.

Corn Salad, a long-time favorite with salad connoisseurs who much prefer it to any lettuce, is a 45-day crop which will winter with a light covering of loose straw in colder areas.

Once the plants are fully developed a few leaves are taken from each plant in the row as with the long-standing spinach. The plants require a 12-inch spacing at maturity, but the usual practice is to sow the seed every three inches and remove three adjacent plants for use while young, leaving the remainder to fill the spaces.

This is another crop to grow under the portable coldframes since a fair sowing can be used into early spring.

The other cool weather vegetable to sow now is Winter Radish. It stands light frosts and needs a minimum of protection during cold spells in winter.

We have done well with Chinese White in a shiplap frame, and enjoyed it cooked and raw as late as February to March.

Winter radish are like small turnips in the round types, and large carrots in the long shapes, therefore need a deeply prepared soil. There are three varieties; Chinese Rose, a large round rose color; Chinese White, a long-shaped white; Round Black Spanish, large round shape with a black skin.

Seed should be carefully sown about two inches apart, otherwise too many plants have to be thinned out and discarded before reaching a usable size and this seriously depletes the winter crop.

Winter Cress, or American Cress, is listed in local seed catalogues. This is a highly nutritious substitute for lettuce that stands well over winter. Separate leaves are picked, and a few plants left to go to seed each spring will assure a supply year after year.

IT'S A STEAL
For the past seven months, I have been building an 18' fiberglass hull with full cabin, equipped with sleeper seats, icebox, sink and stove. To complete this craft would take about 5 hours to install shaft, strut, prop, and line up 10½ h.p. Koler engine with electric start, all supplied. I am selling this boat for my material costs only, which is $2800. When complete, the value of this boat will be over $5000. The reason I'm selling is that I built this boat for my wife; we have since separated, and I have no interest to finish it. 382-5705 after 5.

AMIN GETTING READY FOR ROW WITH FORD

CAIRO (Reuter) — Idi Amin was quoted here Monday as saying that should President Ford snub him when he visits New York for the next UN General Assembly, he would demand that the world body's headquarters be moved.

Amin told the newspaper Al Ahram that he would address the General Assembly in the name of Africa.

"If America respects the views and decisions of the African continent, President Gerald Ford will receive me," Amin said.

"But if he ignores my presence in New York I will go straight to United Nations headquarters and declare the continent's views and fly back to my country.

Fire Caused By Cigarette

A cigarette which landed on a roof after being tossed out of an upstairs window caused a fire at 624 Avalon that did $600 to $700 damage early today, Victoria fire officials said.

The fire, reported at 12:04 a.m. by owner occupants Ross and Clair Sinclair, was confined to the rear of the house and attic. Firemen had the blaze extinguished within 30 minutes.

Peron Boosts Role of the Military

Times News Services

BUENOS AIRES — President Isabel Peron has given the armed forces a voice in the government in an effort to ease Argentina's staggering economic, political and social crisis.

Mrs. Peron swore in her third cabinet in a month Monday, giving the key post of Interior Minister to Army Col. Vincente Damasco, a 48-year-old career officer.

It was the first time a military man has served in the Argentine cabinet since the armed forces stepped down in 1973 after seven years in power.

Damasco served as the president's chief military adviser two years ago when the late Juan Peron returned from exile to head the new civilian government.

Monday's reshuffle was widely seen as an attempt by certain sectors of the Peronist movement, the labor unions and the military to remove the last vestiges of the influence once exerted on the president by her former adviser and social welfare minister, Jose Lopez Rega.

Lopez Rega was forced into exile last month following criticism of his austerity methods as a cure for Argentina's ailing economy, and accusations that he misused public funds and had links with a right-wing death squad.

Road Death Guilty Plea

By HOI-YIN DER
Times Staff

A 20-year-old Snohomish, Wash., man pleaded guilty in provincial court today to a reduced charge of dangerous driving and will be sentenced Friday afternoon.

Terry Lee Pratt was originally charged with two counts of criminal negligence in the operation of a motor vehicle on Esquimalt Road May 30, causing the death of teenagers Deborah McLeod and Cynthia Campbell.

McLeod, 482 Joffre, and Campbell, 1214 Old Esquimalt, died when the car Pratt was driving hit a utility pole in the 800 block Esquimalt Road.

Defence lawyer Douglas Macfarlane had entered election of trial by judge and jury. Preliminary hearing had begun July 2 before Judge William Ostler and testimony of 18 witnesses had been heard.

Judge Fred Green accepted a plea of guilty to the reduced charge of dangerous driving with regard to death of McLeod after prosecutor Nicholas Lang said he had "given very careful thought to the matter."

"I reached the conclusion that the crown cannot prove criminal negligence . . . but it is certainly an aggravated case of dangerous driving," Lang said.

The prosecutor entered a stay of proceedings on count two, which referred to the death of Campbell.

Lang said the incident occurred about 11 p.m. when Pratt's vehicle passed two taxis. One taxi driver who had testified during the preliminary hearing, estimated Pratt to have been driving at approximately 65 miles an hour.

Pratt, McLeod and Campbell were taken to hospital and the two women were pronounced dead on arrival. Pratt suffered internal injuries and his spleen had to be removed.

During submissions to sentence, Macfarlane disputed the alleged speed of Pratt's car. He said it was about 45 miles an hour and that it was "dangerous but not wild and reckless driving . . . he just turned the curb too fast."

He also noted that Pratt had been in custody for more than 80 days because he had been unable to raise $4,000 bail.

"It has not been normal custody for him," said Macfarlane. "People have not been too pleased with his charge and nationality . . . he has been assaulted three times and has had to be placed in protective custody."

DO-IT-YOURSELFER Mike Elliott, 14, of Duncan, captured attention of Times' photographer Bill Halkett when he tied up his boat at Cowichan Bay on the weekend. The Duncan youth designed and made his six-foot high "Highrise Special" with some paternal assistance in the welding department.

British Pianist Performs At UVic

An American composer who was born in Ontario in 1882, Nathaniel Dett, wrote a number of works derived from the life and customs of the American Negro.

One of his arresting and evocative works will be performed tonight by distinguished British pianist, Clive Lythgoe, in a concert at UVic's MacLaurin Auditorium.

Lythgoe, who has appeared with all the leading British orchestras and conductors and tours both Europe and America frequently, is on the faculty of the Shawnigan Summer School of the Arts which is presenting tonight's concert as one of a series to be given this month.

Also appearing in the program with Lythgoe is the famed Orford String Quartet which has been, since 1968, quartet in residence at the University of Toronto.

Tickets will be available at the door.

Woman Badly Injured

A 26-year-old Kamloops woman is in critical condition in the intensive care section of Victoria General Hospital with multiple injuries she received in a single car mishap in Sooke Monday evening.

Sooke RCMP said Linda Turner was travelling alone two miles east of Sooke at about 7 p.m. when her car left the road, struck a railroad sign and rolled over. She was thrown from the vehicle.

Gov't Forest Files Opened to Probers

PRINCE GEORGE — Government information on the province's forest resource has been made accessible to all citizen groups by the Royal Commission on Forest Resources which opened its first public hearing here today.

Commission chairman Dr. Peter Pearse in an opening address recalled that when the commission was first established it received many requests from organizations asking for access to forest information available from government agencies.

They sought the information for the preparation of their briefs and submissions.

"I have communicated these requests to the relevant agencies, and the forest service and fish and wildlife branch have promised to meet requests for information within their capabilities," he stated.

Pearse was replying to complaints made earlier this year by the Victoria Sierra Club and other organizations that they would be appearing before the commission at disadvantage.

They noted they had no access to government information and publications relating to the forest industry and its management for the preparation of their briefs and submissions.

Pearse observed that much information on the province's forest resources is now available in reports and studies recently completed and published. One of these was on forest tenures in B.C.

He disclosed that he himself had commissioned a consultant to document the B.C. forest service present policy with regard to annual allowable cuts of timber, after receiving a request from an organization.

"The document is already in draft form and will be available very shortly," he said.

Pearse said the commission expects to receive 200 submissions at public hearings to be held in six centres. These included Prince Rupert, Kamloops, Nelson, Victoria and Vancouver.

He emphasized that the inquiry was not a "court and no one is on trial."

"While conflicting interests and differences of opinion will undoubtedly emerge, I trust that all participants will help to create an atmosphere of mutual interest in the outcome of this inquiry," he said.

He noted that the commission has a heavy public responsibility to appraise itself fully of the problems associated with the allocation of timber and forest lands.

He observed that since the last forest inquiry 19 years ago, the forest industry had undergone major changes.

Great advances in timber utilization have taken place," he said. "To accommodate this growth and development the government has introduced a variety of new forms of timber rights and modified older forms and these are the main focus of the current inquiry."

SPENDING A PENNY . . .

There's not much (if anything) left to purchase for a penny.

But Thursday, between 6:30 and 8:30 p.m. at Henderson Park in Oak Bay, a penny carnival will be held as the final special event of the Oak Bay parks and recreation playgrounds program.

Twenty-three leaders from playgrounds will be involved at the carnival with children running 20 booths including a fortune teller, games and white elephant fish bowl.

All prizes are made by the children and each event costs one penny.

If it rains, the penny carnival will be held in Henderson pavilion. A craft display and possibly music will be held in the pavilion. The public is invited.

French Join Blaze Fight

HANNOVER (Reuter) — Firefighting units battled through the night against the latest in a series of fires that have killed five persons and destroyed nearly 10,000 acres of woods and grassland on Lueneburg heath in northern West Germany.

They were to be joined later today by three Canadair firefighting aircraft, lent by the French government, and by the main force of more than 7,000 firemen, troops and civilian volunteers who had used the hours of darkness to rest.

The aircraft flew their first flights early Monday evening, each scooping up a thousand gallons of water at a time from Lake Steinhuder and dumping it on the blazing woods and meadows at Eschede.

BCFP Cleared On Spill Charge

DUNCAN — B.C. Forest Products mill at Crofton was judged not guilty today of unlawfully depositing an oil dispersant while combatting an oil spill one year ago.

"I have considered all . . . evidence given during the course of this trial and I find on the whole of the evidence that the Crown has failed to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant ever depsited or permitted the deposit of the deleterious substance as alleged," Duncan Provincial Court Judge T. G. Bowen Colthurst said as he handed down a six-page decision clearing the pulp and paper mill.

The mill was charged on two counts by the federal Environmental Protection Service following a bunker oil spill from a Gulf of Georgia Towing Ltd. fuel barge at Crofton docks Aug. 10, 1974.

The spill was cleaned up in a 30-hour operation by BCFP crews which, charged the environmental service, used an oil dispersant where it could enter waters frequented by fish.

The company was originally charged under the Fisheries Act with three counts, but one was dismissed.

"The substance used at Crofton . . . was never analyzed," Bowen Colthurst stated in his report. "The substance which was analyzed was obtained nearly 10 months later from a barrel in Vancouver."

The ruling stated there was no evidence as to the origin of the contents of this barrel but there was evidence indicating the barrel, after being emptied, had been used to store other substances than the original contents.

The only evidence submitted that the dispersant was used was that its name, "Diamed," was marked on the drum, said the judge.

Midsummer Dream . . . Late-Summer Delight

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Highly-satisfactory ensemble work takes precedence over individual performances in the UVic Summer Theatre Workshop production of Shakespeare's Midsummer Night's Dream currently at the Phoenix.

Imaginative direction of Colin Skinner and adept choreographing by Kaz Piesowocki and Kerry-Lynn Krich have provided the production with its highlight.

A sibilant ebb and flow, a restless shifting of forms that builds to a rushing torrent of movement is only rendered imperfect by the pounding of the fairy feet on the set's bare wooden ramps.

Despite this disturbingly substantial human element, the production, greatly assisted by the quality and patterns of lighting by Giles Hogya and crew and a free fantasia of costumes by Biddy Gaddes, achieves an impression of eeriness, a dream-world sensation.

For the senior secondary students who have come from many parts of the province for this workshop, the production represents two main sides of the coinage of being an actor, and numerous aspects of being a knowledgable theatre person.

As actors they have learned and are demonstrating one of the two basics of their art. Movement, body language, is where it all begins.

But the matter of the second basic, speech, is where it fails for this group, as with so many. In the complex matter of vocal quality, expressiveness and diction, the handling of poetic speech, there is a general lack that six weeks of workshop, unless it is concentrated on speech alone, cannot cope with.

The large cast of principals have been well prepared by director Skinner in aspects of interpretation and characterization and throw themselves into their roles with fervor and sustained attentiveness.

Inevitably there are those who stand out as having a particular flair and among these, the foremost is Mickey Brazeau who plays the lovely and beloved Hermia.

This young actress has a pleasing voice; she understands pace and variety both in speech and movement. She has an instinct for timing and good rhythmic control and these technical aspects are all overlaid with a very real depth of feeling for the moods and emotional quality of the role.

Sincerity of feeling also marked the performance of Robert Metcalfe as Lysander and Jennifer Coles' love-sick Helena.

David Sawchuk is an effective Oberon but the make-up, while properly wierd, obliterates his facial expression almost completely.

Titania (Marilyn Hille) and her fairy attendants create an effective elfin feeling and the rustics are quite successful in the hands of Craig Jones, Steve Horvath, Ron Chartier, Eric Hanston, Joseph Schlosse and especially Dennis Hassell whose timing, facial expressiveness and movement as Botton the Weaver, is excellent.

Horold Rhenisch's Puck is too much of the young hoodlum and too little of the mischievous sprite to be a really satisfactory characterization and speech that turns into gibberish mars some other roles.

There will be three more performances at the Phoenix, tonight, Wednesday and Thursday at 8 p.m.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

The sixth American fisherman charged in Victoria provincial court this summer with fishing in Canadian waters, Andrew Webster, of Bellingham, pleaded guilty Monday before Judge Fred Green.

Rather than the usual $500 fine, Webster was fined $150 and ordered to forfeit his $127 catch of salmon.

Webster, 28, told Green he had been in U.S. waters when he started fishing, but soon after, a freighter rammed the net of his 32-foot gillnetter Janet Lynne.

He had been trying for three hours to untangle the net when stopped by a fisheries patrol boat two miles inside the international boundary.

"The tide must have carried me into Canadian waters, but I was not fishing," Webster said.

Green said "statute doesn't specify intent" and a fine had to be levied.

"But the accused indicates to me he was not fishing . . . his boat was run into by a freighter and he was trying to untangle the net. I have no reason to doubt this and it should be taken into account when sentencing," the judge said.

Judge Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre sentenced a 47-year-old man to 14 days in jail after he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

Duncan Stuart Robertson, 1057 Redfern, was also prohibited from driving in Canada for four months, placed on a six-month term of probation and ordered to take the impaired driver's course.

Prosecutor Scott Marshall said Robertson was driving south on Government at 6:55 p.m. Saturday when he struck a parked car.

The owner of the car chased Robertson at speeds of 60 to 70 miles per hour, finally catching up with him at a red light at the intersection of Bay and Tyee.

A RACE WAR IN TORONTO?

SAN JUAN (UPI) — A widely-distributed Caribbean columnist called today upon regional governments to move to avoid a race war in Canada, particularly Toronto.

Grenadian Alister Hughes, whose weekly column is published by a number of newspapers, described the racial situation in the Ontario capital as a "Bomb" which must be defused "before West Indians are exposed to the terrors of widespread, violent racist activity which, up to now, has been foreign to Canada."

Hughes said a show of good will by the majority of both races in the city would not be enough to stop growing overt racism by a group called Western Guard, and that government action was needed.

"Unless they have abandoned their nationals now resident in Canada, West Indian governments must consult early with the Canadian government," hughes said.

The Western Guard had been implicated in a number of attacks on Caribbean immigrants to Toronto in the last year, and had recently leased a telephone number where persons could call to hear "an unvarnished racist message," he wrote.

The message, he said, calls for the prohibition of mixed marriages and for deporting all non-white immigrants back to their own countries.

The Western Guard has an open affiliation with the Ku Klux Klan of the United States, he claimed.

"This activity of the Western Guard has not escaped the attention of the Canadian authorities, but nothing has been done about it," Hughes said.

Hoffa's Son Contradicts FBI's Claim

DETROIT (UPI) — The son of former Teamsters president James Hofa says the FBI has interviewed a man who claims to have witnessed his father's abduction.

"Authorities have interviewed extensively an individual who claims he was an eyewitness to the abduction at the Machius Red Fox Restaurant," James P. Hoffa told newsmen Monday at the family's Lake Orion home.

"He has given us substantial leads which have been followed up carefully."

Hoffa's statement contradicted remarks by FBI officials that no promising leads have turned up in the 12-day-old investigation and that authorities do not know whether Hoffa's disappearance July 30 "was voluntary or otherwise."

An FBI spokesman said, "We have no knowledge of a witness to the abduction of Mr. Hoffa."

Hoffa refused to answer newsmen's questions about the alleged mysterious witness. He said he taped an appeal for help in the investigation for broadcast by Los Angeles television station KTTV "because we feel there is evidence to be made available" in that area.

"We think we are gong to have a successful solution to this crime," Hoffa said.

But special agent Jay Bailey of the FBI's Detroit office said investigators had no information to show whether Hoffa is alive or dead and have no suspect, no motives and no evidence of an abduction.

U.S. Attorney Ralph Guy ordered a federal grand jury investigation of Hoffa's disappearance and said he would begin issuing supoenas to "uncooperative witnesses" this week.

GRAIN GRIPES

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Council of America opens a toll-free nationwide telephone line tonight to enable consumers to report cases where anyone uses Soviet grain sales as an excuse for raising retail food prices.

The ACA announced plans for the line last week after asserting the Soviet grain sales were needed to keep U.S. farm prices from plunging under the impact of a big harvest and that they would not be responsible for increasing consumer prices.

Ten incoming lines will be answered by farmers ready to tell consumer callers "the facts" about current food supply and price prospects.

FDA May Ban Plastic Wrap

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration may order off the market some plastic food containers because of a potential cancer link, a spokesman said Monday.

The agency is also about to study whether water pipes made of the polyvinyl chloride form of plastic pose a health risk in the millions of homes in which they are used.

About 150 million pounds of PVC in film form are used every year to wrap foods such as meat and fresh produce, while another 55 million pounds goes into bottles.

Ralph Nader's health research group last month asked the FDA for a total ban on PVC in food packaging, claiming it is leached into the food.

The government banned liquor bottles made from PVC several years ago because of evidence the alcoholic beverages drew the chemical out of the bottles. In addition, vinyl chloride in gas form, used in making polyvinyl chloride products, has been banned as a propellant in most aerosol sprays.

Exposure to the gas and cancer frequency among workers in the plastics industry have been linked, but the industry steadfastly has claimed there is no health problem related to the package form.

Four-Day L.A. Fire Still Burns

SUNLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Firefighters today tried anew to contain a four-day old arson-caused fire in the Angeles National Forest that jumped fire lines and was reported spreading quickly.

Gusty winds Monday sent the flames leaping through a one-mile gap in the fire line into untouched brush and timber and fire officials had no idea if it could be contained. But cooler temperatures aided the firefighting effort.

"The fire ate up about 2,700 acres inside the fire lines. It's burned at least 3,000 acres by now and it's spreading fast and will continue to do so. We have no idea when it will be controlled," said a spokesman for Los Angeles County Fire Department.

An additional 105 firefighters from the U.S. Forest Service joined 850 men already on the lines. They were aided by 10 aerial tankers dropping chemical repellant from the air.

Black Feared Report Futile

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Joan Little testified at her murder trial Monday that she did not report a white jailer's sexual advances because she felt a black woman's word would not be taken over the word of a white.

"In Washington, N.C., coming up as a black woman, it's different saying what you did and having your word go up against a white person's," Little told District Attorney William Griffin.

Little, 21, is being tried for second-degree murder in the slaying last Aug. 27 of Clarence Alligood, 62, at the Beaufort County Jail in Washington, N.C. The prosecution says he was killed as part of an escape.

She said Monday that Alligood forced her to perform oral sex on him before she stabbed him and fled the jail.

She said, however, that Alligood was alive and standing in the doorway of her cell when she ran.

Griffin asked her to read at length from notes she made while in jail, which recorded nighttime visits by Alligood and other law enforcement personnel. Much of the material focused on her desire to get out of jail to get back to her friend, Julius Rodgers.

Gulf Hiding Credit—FTC

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) accused Gulf Oil Corp. today of violating the Truth in Lending Act by failing to tell customers that credit costs are hidden in the price of merchandise promoted through the mails.

The complaint alleged that Gulf's solicitations to credit card customers stated there was "no charge for credit" or "no finance charge" for instalment purchases, but that credit costs were included in the merchandise price.

Manson Pushing for Appeal

OAKLAND, Calif. — Former hippie cult leader Charles Manson is pushing for appeal of his mass murder conviction, but he says he has little hope of ever being a free man.

Manson, now 40 and sporting a short beard and inch-long fingernails, was interviewed in San Quentin prison by reporter Stan Atkinson.

At one point, Manson said that "getting out of prison is so far away in my mind, I would just like to be left alone."

"If you spend a lot of time in prison, it doesn't get better or worse, you get a balance with whatever you have to deal with."

The interview, aired Monday night by station KTVU, was Manson's first since he and three co-defendants were found guilty of the murder of actress Sharon Tate and six others.

Manson, whose followers testified during a nine-month murder trial in Los Angeles in 1970-1971 that he was "perfection," said that if he ever regained his freedom, it might be difficult for him to confront the "fear of the Manson name and family."

B.C. Buys CN Cruise Ship

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

A second coastal steamship has been added to the B.C. government's fleet for a cost of nearly $300,000.

The fire-damaged Canadian National steamship Prince George will be repaired by the government this winter in preparation for a one-week round-trip service up and down the B.C. coast starting next spring.

Victoria may be the southern terminal for the new service but Resources Minister Bob Williams, who announced the purchase today, said final details are yet to be worked out.

B.C. originally offered CN $1 for the vessel later the ship was damaged by a small fire and the company cancelled its run to Alaska.

The new price tag, which includes $230,000 in cash plus 28 acres of crown land in Prince George valued at $50,000 to $70,000, was a "negotiated compromise" with CN, said Williams.

(Earlier, Transport Minister Bob Strachan said numerous bids of about $200,000 had been made for the ship for use as scrap.)

Like the Princess Marguerite, purchased from Canadian Pacific earlier this year and now operating daily from Victoria to Seattle and Port Angeles, the government hopes to use the Prince George to boost the economies of the communities it will serve.

"The main thing is not to make money, although we can probably do that . . . it's to provide a service to the people along the B.C. coast," said Williams.

It is too early to determine, he said, whether the Princess Marguerite run will make money under government auspices but revenues are above initial projections. (CP sold the vessel because it was losing money).

The service along the coast will be designed as a tourist attraction as well as one to provide an economic link with small communities.

The ship may go as far as Alaska, said Williams, and will call at such places as Powell River, Campbell River, Alert Bay, Namu, Bella Bella, Bella Coola, Ocean Falls, Klemtu,

★ REVENUE UP

July revenues for the Princess Marguerite were up $100,000 over the same month last year, Resources Minister Bob Williams said today.

The increase is 14 per cent over last year when the ship was operated by Canadian Pacific.

During the same month, passenger volumes were up 7 per cent on the Seattle run and 10 per cent on the Port Angeles run, he said.

Total revenues for the government-operated service until the end of July were about $1.25 million.

But the minister said it was too early to say whether the government will make money on the service.

Revenues and passenger counts are higher than the government projected, he said, but there is a fine line between making a little money and losing a little.

Costs have increased somewhat, said Williams, because crew on the ship has been enlarged and ferry fares have not gone up.

ICBC Union Fund Dry

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

The $500,000 defence fund for striking Insurance Corporation of B.C. employees has been exhausted and weekly benefit payments have been stopped, a union official said today.

Bill Kyles, Office and Technical Employees Union business representative, said a system is now being worked out to deal with "priorities" or emergency cases on an individual basis.

"I would have to say there are undoubtedly some individuals in very difficult economic circumstances," Kyle said.

He said individual locals of the union are attempting to "look after their own" and trying to help out people who are in dire financial straits.

The 1,800-member OTEU went on strike against the Crown corporation May 20 to back demands for a first contract.

Strike benefits for the first weeks of the dispute were set at $20 a week, but were raised to $40 a week around mid-June.

"The half million dollars we've gone through is a lot of money, especially when you consider that it all comes out of members' dues," Kyles said.

The money in the defence fund for the ICBC workers has come from dues paid by other OTEU members across Canada and from the union's international headquarters. Unions do not normally assess dues until a newly-organized local has achieved a first contract, so ICBC employees have paid only the $1 per person initiation fee.

"We really did expect a fairly difficult period but we didn't expect to be in a confrontation with a Crown corporation in quite this way," Kyles said.

The ICBC strike, which is exactly 12 weeks old Wednesday, has used up one-third of the international's defence fund, Kyles said.

The international defence fund is made up on the basis of a 25-cents-per-member per month assessment, while the local defence fund is one-eighth of one per cent of a member's monthly dues.

Kyles estimated that between 20 and 25 per cent of the ICBC employees would not return to work for the insurance agency after the strike.

"I don't think it will be just clerical people either, there will be some losses of people who have special skills in the insurance industry."

In Victoria, only two of the about 55 OTEU members have left so far, local shop steward Wayne Koski said today.

Kyles said the strike and the resulting loss of employees damaged not only the employees and the public, but the corporation itself. "The principle (of government-operated insurance) may be a sound one, but I don't think this has helped it."

He said that despite the losses, the support for the union stand is still evident. A strike vote taken in early May showed 97.5 per cent in favor of strike action and last week's vote on the corporation's latest offer was 85.5 per cent in favor of rejection.

Jobless Totals Remain Record

★ BUDGET DEFICIT REACHES $954M

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government spent $954 million more than it collected during the first three months of the current fiscal year, the finance department reported today.

The budgetary deficit — which is accumulating at a rate faster than that predicted for the year by Finance Minister John Turner — resulted from the spending of $6,874 billion during April-June while revenue for the period totalled only $5.92 billion.

During the same period last year, there was a surplus of $180 million, resulting from revenue of $5.758 billion and expenditures totalling $5,578 billion. However the government ended the 1974-75 fiscal year on March 31 with a net deficit of $1.146 billion.

In his June 23 budget, Turner announced the government was trimming spending by $1 billion and predicted a 1975-76 deficit of $3.175 billion with spending of $28.9 billion and revenue of $25.725 billion.

Based on the minister's prediction for the year, spending during the first quarter of 1975-76 was less than expected but the shortfall in revenue was greater. If the deficit continued to accumulate at the same rate, the year-end deficit would total $3.816 billion.

The budgetary spending data includes only the government's discretionary spending. It does not include the costs of such items as federal-provincial cost-sharing programs to which the government is committed by acts of Parliament.

OTTAWA (CP) — The national unemployment rate remained at a 14-year record high in July, with a slight increase in the jobless rate for women and workers in Newfoundland and Alberta.

Statistics Canada reported today the July rate was 7.2 per cent, a level which has remained constant for five months, except for May, when it dropped to 7.1 per cent.

The British Columbia rate was down four-tenths of one per cent to 7.9, still above the national average.

The Canada-wide rate continued to be the highest since 1961, when the July 7.2 per cent represented the beginning of a decline after 11 months of higher levels.

Although there were slightly fewer jobs available in July of this year, the number of persons seeking work declined at a marginally greater rate. The statistics are adjusted for seasonal variations. Economists regard adjusted figures as a more accurate measure of unemployment.

On an actual basis, 653,000 were officially unemployed in July, 89,000 in B.C.

Student unemployment dropped to 8.1 per cent from 14.4 per cent in June — consistent with the annual pattern — although the rate remained high in comparison with the two previous years. Student unemployment was 6.1 per cent in July, 1974, and 5.8 per cent in July, 1973.

On a seasonally-adjusted basis, the unemployment rate for those 24 and younger dropped to 12.3 per cent from 12.6 per cent in June.

The rate for men 25 and older dropped to 5.5 per cent from 5.6 in June while the rate for women of the same age increased one-tenth of the one per cent to 4.7 per cent.

The jobless rate dropped or remained steady in all provinces except Newfoundland, where it rose one per cent to 18.9, and Alberta, where it increased to 4.4 per cent from 4.2 in June.

The best improvement was in Manitoba, where the rate dropped by 1.7 per cent to a 2.6-per-cent rate for July.

Little change had been expected in the July unemployment rate, although forecasters expect the rate to rise later in the year.

The Canadian Labor Congress predicts levels of 7.5 to eight per cent by the end of the year and into 1976, although the economy is expected to show the beginning of a

Crowd Razes Office

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — Thousands of stone-throwing demonstrators broke through a cordon of rifle-firing troops today and sacked Communist headquarters in the northern town of Viseu.

The crowd of about 4,000 smashed windows, ripped out plumbing, tossed office equipment onto the street and burned broken furniture in bonfires in front of the building.

"In every practical sense they destroyed the place," a fire department official said. "They even brought the bathtub out."

A police spokesman said Communists inside the headquarters fired pistols and threw gasoline bombs into the crowd.

A Misericordia Hospital spokesman said 15 persons were injured in the attack and that four were in critical condition. Two needed treatment for gunshot wounds.

Police reported one man also killed, but later retracted the statement.

The injured included police commander Adriano Sanches, who was hit in the head by a rock as troops fired shots into the air in an attempt to break up the crowd.

It was the latest in a series of attacks against Communist headquarters in the conservative north. Some fifty Communist centres have now been sacked in recent weeks.

B.C. TAKES LEAD IN WESTERN GAMES

REGINA (CP) — British Columbia rode the arms and legs of a tremendously strong track and field contingent to a commanding lead in the medal standings after the first day of the Western Canada Summer Games Monday.

Athletes from the Pacific province grabbed seven of the eight track-and-field gold medallions awarded Monday.

40 Suites for Demolition, Fire Safety Costs Blamed

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Three Victoria lawyers who own the 40-suite St. Helen's Apartments at 828 Courtney plan to demolish the building rather than carry out costly improvements ordered by fire officials to meet current safety standards.

"The cost of bringing this old building up to the standards they require — the 1975 National Building Code — is just an impossibility," Chris Randall, president of RMP Developments, said Monday.

Randall said tenants in the rambling three-storey frame apartment haven't had eviction notices yet, but they are aware that the building is to be closed and demolished "before the end of the year."

The closure announcement comes only about five weeks after the property owners were served with an order July 4 by the local assistant to the B.C. Fire Marshal (an official in Fire Chief Eric Simmons' department), instructing them to upgrade the buildig and its equipment.

Simmons acquired the new powers to deal with sub standard buildings under recent amendments to the Fire Marshal's Act, but before he launched the program last month he warned city council that in some cases the financial burden on owners could result in the buildings being closed and tenants evicted.

Old hotels and apartments with large numbers of occupants are receiving priority attention by the fire officials. A spokesman said Monday nine orders listing required improvements have already been issued, and another seven are ready to go out.

In the case of the St. Helen's Apartments, the order set out two pages of requirements, including such points as access to fire exits, fire detection and alarm systems, emergency lighting and boiler enclosure.

Randall, whose partners in RMP Developments are fellow-lawyers R. J. Meyer and E. J. Pollard, said he went through the building with the assistant fire marshal and chief building inspector, "and within the first five minutes we were looking at over $40,000" in putting right various deficiencies.

"It seemed that every time we turned around we were in the position of having to make more changes," he added, because each point listed by the fire official would have needed complementary work stipulated by the building inspector.

He said the officials admitted they were allowed no discretion in the matter, and if the same rigid approach is adopted in dealing with all Victoria's older buildings he

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Space agency officials have rescheduled for Thursday an attempt to launch an unmanned Viking spacecraft on an 11-month voyage to look for signs of life on Mars.

Sales Halt Sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz has asked American grain companies to suspend further sales to Russia. His request, backed up with the threat of legal action, followed new government estimates showing cuts in 1975 grain production prospects both in the U.S. and Russia.

Man Shot as Protestants Riot

BELFAST (Reuter) — A man was shot to death by gunmen as Protestant rioters, supported by snipers on rooftops, besieged police stations here during the night and attacked British troops with stones and fire bombs.

Police said early today about 30 persons had been injured in clashes between security forces and Protestant rioters, following violent street fighting in Roman Catholic districts last weekend which left two boys and a girl dead.

A police spokesman said that nearly all the violence during the night had been reported from Protestant districts in West Belfast.

But early today, a 57-year-old man died in hospital after being shot by several gunmen in the vicinity of a Catholic enclave in East Belfast.

The violence erupted Monday afternoon when police arrested three men who had been trying to rob a bank in the Shankhill Road area, a stronghold of the staunchly Protestant Ulster Defence Association street army. Angry Protestant crowds attacked the policemen with stones and bottles and freed one of the prisoners.

The two remaining prisoners were taken to a police station which was besieged by about 100 rioters trying to free the men. Snipers opened fire from rooftops across the road, and a number of police cars parked in the station's yard were damaged.

Troops dispatched to help the police came under fire nearby. Two fire bombs were thrown at them but no injuries were reported.

In Londonderry, Northern Ireland's predominantly-Catholic city, strict security arrangements were being enforced today to prevent sectarian clashes during traditional Protestant parades.

Police and troops sealed off the centre of the city, searching people and cars passing through. About 10,000 Protestants from all parts of Northern Ireland were expected to take part in the Apprentice Boys marches, the planned routes of which were kept as far as possible away from Catholic districts.

NO M-B DIVIDEND

VANCOUVER (CP) — MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. directors have decided to omit third-quarter dividend payments.

This is the first time the company has skipped a dividend since the second quarter of 1971 when the company reported its lowest earnings in history.

Chairman George Currie said net earnings for the first half of 1975 were $19.8 million or 94 cents a share compared to $50.21 million or $2.37 a share in the corresponding 1974 period.

Sales and other income was $715.94 million in the first half of 1975 and $720.93 million in the same period last year.

Currie said the company's shipping subsidiary, Canadian Transport Co. Ltd., lost $6.7 million after income tax recoveries and the market for building materials, packaging products and liner board was depressed.

"Further transportation losses which are anticipated during the last half of 1975 could impair significantly the profitability of MacMillan Bloedel for that period," he said.

City Housing Starts Plunge for June

A dramatic plunge of 36 per cent in the rate of new housing starts in Victoria is indicated in preliminary figures for June from the federal government's mortgage agency.

Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. reports there were only 203 units started in the metropolitan area compared with 317 in June 1974, with the sharpest decline in apartment-type construction.

Single family dwelling starts totalling 122 units were actually up 26 per cent from a year earlier, but the remaining types numbered only 81 units for a 64 per cent drop.

Improvement in single family starts was a small bright spot in new housing statistics for the first six months of 1975, which in Victoria show a 31 per cent decline from last year at the end of June.

Cumulative figures from CMHC show 399 single family starts (off 42 per cent from 684 in the first half last year) and 744 others, (off 23 per cent from 961), for a total 1,143 (down 30 per cent from 1,645).

June statistics will be confirmed next month.

Preliminary figures indicate new housing of all types in B.C. rose by 5 per cent in June — 2,475 units compared with 2,353 last year—and 46 per cent over May of this year, with the improvement entirely in centres other than Victoria and Vancouver.

U.S. VETOES VIETS

UNITED NATIONS (WP) — The United States, standing alone against an overwhelming majority and reversing a practice of 30 years, Monday vetoed admission of North and South Vietnam to the United Nations. The U.S. did so because of the Security Council's refusal to consider South Korea's application for membership.

It was the first time that the United States vetoed a membership application.

Thirteen countries voted in favor of the admission of the two Vietnams. When U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations Daniel P. Moyniham cast the only negative vote, there were hisses from the partially filled visitors gallery.

Angola Armies Withdraw

Times News Services

Portuguese officials hope the remaining 450 soldiers of a third group will withdraw, permitting a joint army to restore peace in the capital.

Meanwhile, troops of the National Front for the Liberation of Angola were evacuated from Luanda by sea to Ambrizete in northern Angola.

The Portuguese national airline TAP, meanwhile, airlifted about 700 refugees from Nova Lisboa today as part of the expanded plan to evacuate more than 250,000 Angolan whites from the war-torn country by Oct. 31.

More than 30,000 whites, fleeing the fighting between the rival independence movements have sought shelter in Nova Lisboa.

Portuguese troops occupied the 16th century Sao Pedro da Barra fortress overlooking the harbor in Luanda after they evacuated soldiers of the national front.

The front troops held the fort for about three weeks, defying attempts by the Soviet-backed Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola to drive them out.

In a related development, the Portuguese government today rejected an ultimatum by the Democratic Union of Timor to grant immediate independence to that colony in the Pacific Ocean.

An official spokesman said families of troops stationed there have been evacuated, but that the soldeirs themselves were staying behind with the colony's Portuguese government in an attempt to salvage the situation.

Cruise Ship

Kitimat, Prince Rupert, Port Simpson and Stewart.

Either Victoria or Vancouver will be the southern terminus, depending on where the best arrangements can be made.

Williams said the interior of the ship is in excellent condition and once repairs are made to the fire-damaged area the exterior "is definitely in for a major change."

"Native Indian designers will be invited to take part in design competition to develop a bold, Indian motif for the ship's exterior," said the minister.

Details of the competition will be announced early in September.

With a gross tonnage of 5,812, the ship has stateroom accommodation for up to 318 people and has space for 330 tons of regular cargo, 57 tons of refrigerated cargo, nine tons of mail and 181 tons of stores.

The Prince George, which was operating on a cruise run to Alaska, now is tied up at the foot of Main Street in Vancouver.

Arrangements for crewing the vessel have not been made yet but Williams said the government can rely on expertise of the crew of the Marguerite, many of whom were previously employed on the Prince George.

Unemployment Stays Up

recovery during the same period.

"It takes a prolonged recovery before employers are likely to take on many additional workers," said Russell Bell, CLC research director.

The jobless rate remained the same as for June in Quebec, where it was 8.8 per cent, and Saskatchewan, where it was 2.9 per cent.

The rate declined in Ontario to 6.3 per cent from 6.4 in June.

In New Brunswick, the rate dropped one-half of one per cent to 10.7 and Nova Scotia it was down three-tenths of one per cent to seven per cent.

On a seasonally-adjusted basis, the number of persons holding jobs in July was 9,316,000, a decrease of 12,000 from June. But at the same time, the number in the labor force dropped by 13,000 to 10,053,000.

On an actual basis, 9,826,000 held jobs in July, an increase of 188,000 from June — a normal increase for mid-summer. On the same basis, the labor force totalled 10,479,000, an increase of 138,000 from June.

Industrial Prices Falling Off

OTTAWA (CP) — The industrial selling price, a broad measure of factory gate prices, turned downward in June after nearly two years of regular monthly rises, Statistics Canada reported Monday.

The index was three-tenths of one per cent lower than the May level, but is still 11.9 per cent higher than in June, 1974. Industry prices had been rising steadily since September, 1973.

The most significant declines were for petroleum and coal products and primary metals. Prices in the food and beverages industries were lower because of declining sugar and flour prices. Leather industries and non-metallic minerals were fractionally higher.

The general wholesale price index, a less extensive survey, also showed a three-tenths of one per cent decline in June after three consecutive monthly rises.

The index is still 6.8 per cent higher than a year ago.

Six of the eight major groups measured by the wholesale index turned lower, while one rose and one was unchanged.

The largest declines were for vegetable products, fully-manufactured goods, wood and textile products. An 18.3 per cent drop in prices for sugar and its products contributed to some declines in other product catergories.

Prices were lower for all the iron and metals groups, and for chemicals.

The only major group that rose was animal products, mainly because of higher livestock prices, Statistics Canada said.

In the United States, wholesale prices were also lower in June, but then turned sharply higher during July. Canadian figures for July will not be available for several weeks.

Under mainly clear skies temperatures fell in many regions to less than 10 degrees overnight with some localities in interior districts reporting readings near 5. With the main storm track now having been shifted well to the west of the province the outlook for the next few days is for mainly sunny weather in nearly all districts with temperatures warming slightly each day.

Fisherman Feared Dead in Strait

Missing is Mike Hulse, 22, of Port Angeles. He was first believed to have been trapped below decks of the 60-foot vessel Pelican but divers established the boat was empty shortly before she sank one mile offshore, 13 miles north of Port Angeles.

Another man aboard the Pelican — Adolf Sandness, 60, of Aldersood Manor, was rescued by the tug and flown to a Port Angeles hospital.

The collision happened at 6:30 a.m. but a coast guard spokesman said the search for Hulse had to be suspended Monday because of fog conditions hat reduced visibility to almost zero.

Owners to Demolish 40-Suite Apartment

can envisage other owners opting for conversion of the buildings to another use, or demolition.

"Anyone who gets faced with the type of order we received is going to be in a difficult position," Randall said. "There is no way a building of that age can comply with 1975 building code standards."

There is no direct municipal involvement in the upgrading program — appeals against the orders are to the fire marshal himself — but Ald. Sam Bawlf has repeatedly warned council in recent months that "blanket" implementation of the building code standards would impose a hardship on owners of older buildings and perhaps lead to unnecessary closure.

Bawlf noted today, however, that council didn't seem inclined to accept his suggestion for a compromise measure which would ensure reasonable fire safety without unduly high cost.

He advocates that where a building is of such advanced age that structural improvements are unrealistically expensive, the owner should be allowed to install a sprinkling system.

This approach has been successfully adopted in Vancouver, Bawlf said, with the result that several buildings which could have been forced to close are still providing shelter at a reasonable price for low-income tenants.

Mrs. Julie Anderson, who has been manager of the St. Helen's Apartments for the past three years, said there are nine vacancies now and tenants are "gradually leaving" as they find alternative accommodation.

There are some pensioners and service veterans among them, she said, but "they are mostly newcomers" including students and younger itinerant people.

John Wilson, 75, who pays $65 for his furnished room about 10 by 20 feet, plans to move this month but says few apartments are available in town at that price.

Another basement tenant who refused to be named said: "I like it here. It's central — close to town.

"Things are very quiet and I mind my own business. Everybody else does the same," he said.

His dingy room's wallpaper was stained with years of moisture and grease. A neighbour said a fire had smoked the walls black long ago and no cleaning or redecoration had ever been done.

"It's not the palace but it's cheap," said Chuck Armstrong, three flights up in room 24.

Armstrong's rent is $70 and he doubts he will find accommodation elsewhere that is so inexpensive without moving from Victoria altogether.

He is considering looking in Vancouver, he said.

Drug Test Was Fatal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Army announced today its investigators have discovered that a civilian psychiatric patient died after receiving a drug injection in a 1953 test under army contract.

It was the first death reported as a result of extensive army-sponsored drug experiments dating back more than 20 years. These experiments involved about 4,000 soldiers and civilians.

SEXY CIG SELL OUT

LONDON (AP) — British cigarette makers announced today a voluntary advertising code that says their product must not appear to make people more youthful, sexier, braver, more relaxed or better at their jobs.

The advertising guidelines came less than a week after the government said it was considering new controls over the tobacco industry.

The code was drawn up by the manufacturers and the British code of advertising practice committee and will operate under the supervision of the Advertising Standards Authority, an independent body which promotes the highest standards of advertising.

"The essence of the revised code," said an ASA spokesman, "is that advertisements for cigarettes and hand-rolling tobacco should not encourage people — particularly the young — to start smoking, or, if they are already smokers, to increase their level of smoking, or to smoke to excess."

The code does not include the smoking of pipes or cigars.

The media will be asked not to accept advertisements that contravene the code.

Target: Illegal Water Users

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Saanich will get tough with residents who are illegally using water from the municipality's waterways.

The environment committee decided Monday to ask the provincial government's water rights branch to stop issuing licences — or updating them — without referring to Saanich.

Dr. Bob Langford, Saanich's consultant on its restoration of waterways program, said department officials told him they know people are using water illegally.

Ald. Sandy Noel said people holding a water rights licence have to pay a fee each year.

"If you don't pay for three years it (the licence) can be revoked," he added.

Langford said today there are 170 Saanich residents holding water licences, many of whom have no need of them because they are now hooked up to the water board's system.

He said he hoped some of these licences would be phased out.

Some of the people using water illegally, he added, are in the Tod, Colquitz and Viaduct Creek areas, as well as Prospect Lake.

Langford said residents using water illegally could be fined under the provincial government's Water Act at the instigation of Saanich.

A map is being prepared detailing where water is being taken illegally. A copy of the map will be given the water rights branch.

On the urging of chairman Ald. John McDonald, the committee also agreed to write Mayor Jean Butler of Central Saanich asking her for talks on the problem of water being pumped from Elk Lake for Saanich Peninsula residents.

"I would like to see a general discussion," McDonald said, "Let's see what efforts we can make to solve this problem."

Saanich is alarmed at the loss of water from the lake which jeopardizes swimmers and boaters using the lake but, just as important, threatens the municipality's extensive program of restoring fish stocks in the municipality's waterways.

Ald Sandy Noel, who with Mayor Ed Lum represents Saanich on the Greater Victoria Water Board, was pessimistic about getting Central Saanich co-operation.

"I hope you have better success than we did in 1970 (when Noel and water commissioner Ron Upward met Central Saanich to try and persuade them to join the water board system)," he told McDonald, "There is one obstacle. Central Saanich just doesn't want to pay for water. It's as simple as that."

Parks superintendent Frank Andrews told the committee that if the drain of water from Elk Lake continues at the present rate "water will cease to flow Oct. 12 or thereabout. The water will be below the level of the dam and we will have to pump."

Andrew said his department had three irrigation pumps on hand which could be brought into use.

Andrews said the water level on the lake is falling so badly that stumps left half a century ago are being bared.

He said high-speed boats, if they leave their designated area on the lake, could hit stumps.

Noel and Langford felt that the $10 million, which Central Saanich Ald. David Hill claims it will cost to hook up the Saanich Peninsula to the water board's system, is way out of line.

Noel said he estimated it would cost $120,000 to lay pipe from the water board's system to the Central Saanich pumping station.

"I'm prepared to go to the water board and ask their support in putting this (12-inch duct tile pipe) in," he said, "The water board has no major projects now, apart from the peninsula."

TOWN TALK

Never let it be said that our fine Canadian Post Office doesn't communicate.

Why, only yesterday (Aug. 11) Town Talk received a form letter from the local postal authorities, presumably so that we could inform our readers that mail delivery and post office wicket services would be cancelled on a statutory holiday.

The envelope was date-stamped July 21, so it took 20 days to reach us a mile or so away. Let's see, that works out to an average rate of progress of about 88 yards per day — or a little over three yards per hour.

Even the sluggish tortoise, says our encyclopedia, has been clocked at more breathtaking speeds than that.

Just how much money there is in the Socred war chest has produced some acrimonious debate in the past but we can assume there's $1,000 for sure.

The news bulletin of the Esquimalt Social Credit Constituency Association says former premier W. A. C. Bennett has announced the membership contest, which runs from Aug. 1 to Oct. 15. Whoever signs the most new members gets a cheque for $500. Second prize is $300 and third is $200.

The local association has launched its own bumper sticker slogan contest but the prize is a little more prosaic — dinner for two.

Maybe a slogan for the slogan contest could be "Food for Thought."

Thump-thump-thump went the vehicles, in all shapes and sizes and the thumping was a surprise addition to motorists who patronized the Town and Country shopping centre at the weekend.

While the drivers got their thumps, the pedestrians walking across the road from the sidewalk to the parking area breathed a lot easier as the speeding decreased markedly.

A curious mall visitor took 15 minutes out and watched the "spectacle of the thumps" and witnessed at least a half-dozen "sports cars" bottoming, many heads hitting the roofs and a steady stream of unprintable adjectives directed at the speed curbs . . . May other shopping centres follow suit.

Green Light On Peninsula Well Study

Central Saanich aldermen decided Monday night to undertake a $10,000 preliminary well water study on their own if necessary but to invite peninsula municipalities and water districts to take part.

Sidney water district has already indicated it will share in the costs and it seems likely there will be other partners among four more water districts and other municipalities.

The study will provide an expert appraisal of the peninsula's capacity to meet water needs from a system of deep wells. It will be undertaken by the Vancouver firm of Piteau Gadsby MacLeod Ltd.

Concern over water supply on the peninsula has grown this summer with the heavy drainage from Elk Lake combined with an unusually dry season.

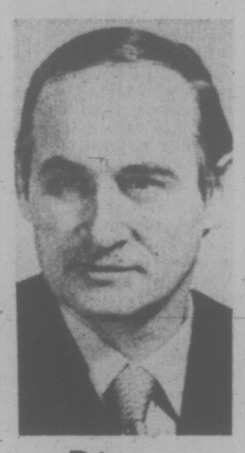
The Vancouver consultants suggest that up to 6 million gallons a day could be pumped from fissures up to 1,000 feet under the peninsula. Costs of tapping the deep sources and a distribution system have been estimated at about $500,000.

The alternative facing the peninsula is to join the Greater Victoria water district's system, which is supplied from Sooke, and one estimate puts the cost of extending this system as high as $10 million.

The $10,000 preliminary study is "a reasonable approach," Central Saanich Mayor Jean Butler said today. "If we don't do this, we're just back to square one."

Council's water committee, which is made up of full council, voted unanimously Monday night for the study. That recommendation still requires formal approval at the next council meeting.

Ald. David Hill, who is chairman of the committee as well as the Peninsula Water Committee, is meeting with peninsula water district representatives on the matter Wednesday.



Dietze Goes North

A new post in the Northwest Territories has been taken by Sig Dietze, head of construction and maintenance for Greater Victoria School District.

His resignation was accepted by school trustees Monday night, effective Aug. 31, completing five years with the district.

Dietze will be managing director of Northwest Territories Housing Corp. at Yellowknife as of Sept. 1.

As a young immigrant to Canada, Dietze learned carpentry then went to university where he studied architecture and earned his master's degree. Last year he completed MA requirements in administration at University of Victoria evening division.

Prior to coming here, Dietze was director of lands and development for Ontario Housing Corp.

Retail Sales Brighten City Economy

Manpower demand is down but retail sales are a bright spot in the current Victoria economy, according to the July report of Canada Manpower Centre.

The report says industrial disputes affecting forestry have had little or no effect on the Victoria core, but it anticipates difficulty in Sooke, Jordan River and Port Renfrew areas and makes no mention of the enforced closure of B.C. Forest Products mills in Victoria through picketing by up-Island pulp workers.

Logging operations in the Sooke area closed because of fire hazard were expected to resume work about the third week of August.

Most major department stores, meanwhile, are enjoying sales at levels well above this time a year ago, and many smaller retailers and specialty stores are reported "pleased" at the level of spending.

Manpower said some are 20 per cent above their performance last year, but the centre points out the consumer price index is up 10.4 per cent while the retail sales index is up 13.1 per cent.

There has been a proportionately small increase in dollar volume and little effect on the number of persons employed in retail selling.

Hotels, motels and restaurants report business fair to good. Some tourists appear to be shopping for the best prices and lower-priced eating places.

Retail figures are supported by a 69 per cent a rise in bank debits for the first six months over last year for a total $15.02 billion.

Finance companies say business is good as funds are loaned for holidays, cars, home furnishings and appliances, and debt consolidation, with collections normal for the period.

Rental housing is in short supply and new housing starts are below 1974, partly due to high cost of financing, the centre reports. But mortgage money is in adequate supply.

Yarrows shipyard maintains a steady work force with orders well into 1976 and there is ongoing work for machine shops, foundries and metal fabricators for the next few months.

The ceptre reports apple picking should be under way this week along with some potato harvesting, and farm labor is in adequate supply.

Massage Okay Or Court—Gold

Richmond businessman William Gold, who last month was denied a business licence to open a body rub parlor in Victoria, said Monday he is prepared to take the city to court if his second licence application is refused.

Gold, president of Cosmopolitan Ventures Ltd., said if he has to issue a writ it will be based on a recent B.C. Appeal Court decision that the municipality of Prince George exceeded its powers in refusing a business licence to a sex shop.

The principle involved in the two situations is the same, he said, because in both cases the municipality in effect "passed moral sentence" on the poposed business enterprises.

"They are denying me the opportunity to earn a living for my family through free enterprise," said Gold, who runs a body rub establishment in Richmond.

"They are judging me to run a house of ill-repute without having seen my operation."

Although the city finance committee initially supported Gold's application on a 3 to 1 vote, the aldermen concerned changed their minds and voted with the rest of council July 24 to reject it.

Council had been informed that the Co-ordinated Law Enforcement Unit was preparing a report for the attorney-general's department on all aspects of massage parlor operations in B.C.

Enough Pencils For 18,000

Greater Victoria School District has bought enough pencils, rulers and notebooks to get 18,000 youngsters ready for school in September.

All those school supplies go on sale next week, Monday to Friday, at six local schools.

The school district decided to sell low-cost supplies for all elementary school pupils in the district after running a successful pilot project last year, when supplies were sold to 2,700 children from seven schools.

The district is running the operation on a non-profit basis, so parents pay about 40 per cent less than the average retail price.

The supplies have been collected into kits for children of all seven grades, with the kits being prepared by Canadian Mental Health Association workers.

Prices are: Grade 1 kit, $2.60; Grade 2, $2.80; Grade 3, $5.10; Grade 4, $5.05; Grade 5, $5.90; Grade 6, $5.60; Grade 7, $5.60.

High school students will be conducting the cash sales (no cheques) from 9 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 to 3:30 p.m. all five days next week.

Ex-Mining Man Dies On 100th Birthday

Funeral will be held Wednesday in Cumberland for Edward Thomas "Ted" Searle, who died Saturday on his 100th birthday.

Searle was to have been given a big family birthday party at Holyrood House to celebrate the day, but the party was cancelled several days earlier when his condition worsened.

He died at Sandringham Hospital where he had been since June, recovering from an operation.

Born in London, Searle came to Canada in 1893, working in various places in Canada and Washington before taking the job as paymaster with a coal mining firm at Union Bay in 1916. He retired in 1947.

Following the death of his wife Caroline in 1955, Searle moved to Comox in 1962 and to Matson Lodge in Victoria in 1966.

He is survived by sons Edward and Robert of Vancouver and Arthur of Victoria.

Door's Open on Community Plan

By PETER MEDWID
Times Staff

The politicians and the planners would closet themselves behind closed doors . . . ask questions; give themselves the answers; and presto . . . a community plan . . . a plan that was "in their best interests."

But not now.

The Capital Region's planning office has gone to the people in developing the western community plan — a plan which will outline the growth and where it will spread in Colwood, Langford, Metchosin and the Millstream area of the Highlands.

Bill Huot of the region's planning office is staffing the department's first "store front" office on Jacklin Road.

It's designed so that residents can obtain information and pass along their views without having to travel to downtown Victoria.

The office is in a portable building and is open Monday to Thursday from 2 to 9 p.m. Fridays are set aside for compiling reports on the week's activities.

Huot stressed the community plan as developed so far is only in the preliminary stages . . . it sets the bare minimums and it is up the residents to help the planners fill in the blanks.

So far the response has been poor. Since the office opened July 21, 300 have walked through the doors.

"In the first week it was the people who have a vested interest — the land developers and real estate groups — but now we are getting the ratepayers themselves," says Huot.

Up to now, development in the Colwood-Langford-Metchosin area has been based on 1959 figures and "everyone has been caught in a mess . . . the highways department and telephone companies just to mention two.

"There has been uncontrolled commercial growth along the main routes and the results have been chaos in the sense of good planning.

"With this community plan — to be completed before the end of this year — the people will have a document to control their growth for the next 20 years.

"Hopefully, the plan will retain the quality of living the residents desire and maybe even correct some of the mistakes that have been made in the past," adds Huot.

He said the growth rate in the area in the past few years has been high and the planners do not see any indication of a falloff.

"There are a lot of attractions such as the rural atmosphere and open spaces, not to mention lower taxes, than in the core municipalities.

"That's why we see the population tripling in the next 20 years (it's about 20,000 now) and why we feel it's imperative that a plan be drawn up to accommodate the expected influx of residents.

Huot says that high on the list of things which must be decided, as well as the main plan, is the developing of better transportation facilities — especially the eliminating of the bottleneck at Colwood Corners on the highway — and sewers.

Oil, Gas Boosts Delayed

By LINDA HUGHES
times Staff

A freeze on home heating oil prices in B.C. will continue at least until the end of the year and expected increases in the price of gasoline will be delayed 20 days.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said today new gasoline prices will not come into effect until after the September Labor Day weekend and the price increase will be 4.5 cents per gallon.

Wholesale gasoline prices were to increase 5 cents per gallon as of Aug. 15 as a result of increases in the per-barrel cost of crude oil in Canada.

Home heating oil was also to rise 5 cents per gallon this month but the B.C. Energy Commission recommended a current price freeze be continue indefinitely.

Macdonald said home heating oil will not increase in price at least until the end of the year and in January the energy commission will again consider possible price increases.

Propane will also be subject to a price freeze while the energy commission considers justifiable price increases for that fuel.

The price adjustments are the result of the energy commission's studies undertaken following the July 1 increase in the price of crude from $6.50 to $8 a barrel.

At that time, the federal government announced there would be a 45-day delay — to Aug. 15 — for the crude price increase to be reflected in gasoline and home heating oil prices.

But Macdonald said the B.C. Energy Commission decided that inventories in the province justified a 65-day delay to Sept. 3.

The new deadline coincides with the end of the Labor Day weekend and Macdonald said it will mean lower gas prices for vacationing British Columbians.

The 4.5-cent increase is at the wholesale level and the government does not have the power to control prices at the pump but the minister said he does not expect retailers to increase gasoline prices beyond that level.

Ontario extended the price delay period to 90 days but

ICBC Union Fund Dry

By LIZ HUGHES

The $500,000 defence fund for striking Insurance Corporation of B.C. employees has been exhausted and weekly benefit payments have been stopped, a union official said today.

Bill Kyles, Office and Technical Employees Union business representative, said a system is now being worked out to deal with "priorities" or emergency cases on an individual basis.

"I would have to say there are undoubtedly some individuals in very difficult economic circumstances," Kyles said.

He said individual units of the union are attempting to "look after their own" and trying to help out people who are in dire financial straits.

The 1,800-member OTEU went on strike against the Crown corporation May 20 to back demands for a first contract.

Strike benefits for the first weeks of the dispute were set at $20 a week, but were raised to $40 a week around mid-June.

"The half million dollars we've gone through is a lot of money, especially when you consider that it all comes out of members' dues," Kyles said.

The money in the defence fund for the ICBC workers has come from dues paid by other OTEU members across Canada and from the union's international headquarters. Unions do not normally assess dues until a newly-organized local has achieved a first contract, so ICBC employees have paid only the $1 per person initiation fee.

"We really did expect a fairly difficult period but we didn't expect to be in a confrontation with a Crown corporation in quite this way," Kyles said.

The ICBC strike, which is exactly 12 weeks old Wednesday, has used up one-third of the international's defence fund, Kyles said.

The international defence fund is made up on the basis of a 25-cents-per-member per month assessment, while the local defence fund is one-eighth of one per cent of a member's monthly dues.

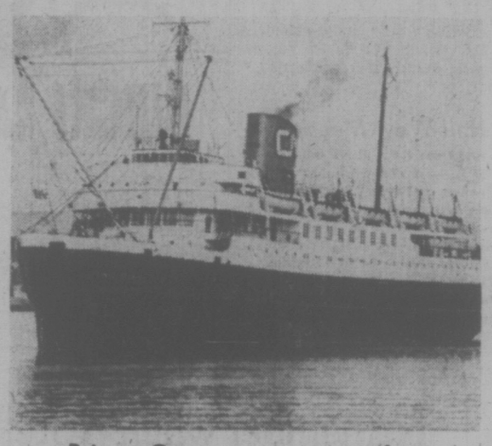
Kyles estimated that between 20 and 25 per cent of the ICBC employees would not return to work for the insurance agency after the strike.

"I don't think it will be just clerical people either, there will be some losses of people who have special skills in the insurance industry."

In Victoria, only two of the about 55 OTEU members have left so far, local shop steward Wayne Koski said today.

Kyles said the strike and the resulting loss of employees damaged not only the employees and the public, but the corporation itself. "The principle (of government-operated insurance) may be a sound one, but I don't think this has helped it."

He said that despite the losses, the support for the union stand is still evident. A strike vote taken in early May showed 97.5 per cent in favor of strike action and last week's vote on the corporation's latest offer was 85.5 per cent in favor of rejection.



Prince George . . . coastal run

CN Cruise Ship Bought by B.C.

A second coastal steamship has been added to the B.C. government's fleet for a cost of nearly $300,000.

The fire-damaged Canadian National steamship Prince George will be repaired by the government this winter in preparation for a one-week round-trip service up and down the B.C. coast starting next spring.

Victoria may be the southern terminal for the new service but Resources Minister Bob Williams, who announced the purchase today, said final details are yet to be worked out.

B.C. originally offered CN $1 for the vessel. Later the ship was damaged by a small fire and the company cancelled its run to Alaska.

The new price tag, which includes $230,000 in cash plus 28 acres of crown land in Prince George valued at $50,000 to $70,000, was a "negotiated compromise" with CN, said Williams.

(Earlier, Transport Minister Bob Strachan said numerous bids of about $200,000 had been made for the ship for use as scrap.)

Like the Princess Marguerite, purchased from Canadian Pacific earlier this year and now operating daily from Victoria to Seattle and Port Angeles, the government hopes to use the Prince George to boost the economies of the communities it will serve.

"The main thing is not to make money, although we can probably do that . . . it's to provide a service to the people along the B.C. coast," said Williams.

It is too early to determine, he said, whether the Princess Marguerite run will make money under government auspices but revenues are above initial projections. (CP sold the vessel because it was losing money).

The service along the coast will be designed as a tourist attraction as well as one to provide an economic link with small communities.

The ship may go as far as Alaska, said Williams, and will call at such places as Powell River, Campbell River, Alert Bay, Namu, Bella Bella, Bella Coola, Ocean Falls, Klemtu, Kitimat, Prince Rupert, Port Simpson and Stewart.

Either Victoria or Vancouver will be the southern terminus, depending on where the best arrangements can be made.

REVENUE UP FOR MAGGIE

July revenues for the Princess Marguerite were up $100,000 over the same month last year, Resources Minister Bob Williams said today.

The increase is 14 per cent over last year when the ship was operated by Canadian Pacific.

During the same month, passenger volumes were up 7 per cent on the Seattle run and 10 per cent on the Port Angeles run, he said.

Total revenues for the government-operated service until the end of July were about $1.25 million.

But the minister said it was too early to say whether the government will make money on the service.

Revenues and passenger counts are higher than the government projected, he said, but there is a fine line between making a little money and losing a little.

Costs have increased somewhat, said Williams, because crew on the ship has been enlarged and ferry fares have not gone up.

The higher number of passengers has come despite the fact the ferry has not taken advance booking for tour parties as CP used to do, said Williams.

The heaviest day for passengers this year was Aug. 9 with 1,873 on board for morning run from Seattle.

B.C. TAKES LEAD IN WESTERN GAMES

REGINA (CP) — British Columbia rode the arms and legs of a tremendously strong track and field contingent to a commanding lead in the medal standings after the first day of the Western Canada Summer Games Monday.

Athletes from the Pacific province grabbed seven of the eight track-and-field gold medallions awarded Monday.

FALL B.C. BUDGET POSSIBLE—BARRETT

Premier Barrett said today his government may consider bringing in an auxiliary budget in the fall as a means of combatting the ill effects of the June federal budget.

No decision has been made yet, he said, but it's a possible course of action.

The Ontario provincial government brought in additional budget measures, such as removing the sales tax on North American automobiles, after the federal budget was announced.

Barrett said at that time the federal budget was both regressive and inflationary and B.C. would have to study its effects to see what provincial action could be taken to lessen its effect on the economy.

Crowd Razes Office

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — Thousands of stone-throwing demonstrators broke through a cordon of rifle-firing troops today and sacked Communist headquarters in the northern town of Viseu.

The crowd of about 4,000 smashed windows, ripped out plumbing, tossed office equipment onto the street and burned broken furniture in bonfires in front of the building.

"In every practical sense they destroyed the place," a fire department official said. "They even brought the bathtub out."

A police spokesman said Communists inside the headquarters fired pistols and threw gasoline bombs into the crowd.

A Misericordia Hospital spokesman said 15 persons were injured in the attack and that four were in critical condition. Two needed treatment for gunshot wounds.

Police reported one man also killed, but later retracted the statement.

The injured included police commander Adriano Sanches, who was hit in the head by a rock as troops fired shots into the air in an attempt to break up the crowd.

It was the latest in a series of attacks against Communist headquarters in the conservative north. Some fifty Communist centres have now been sacked in recent weeks.

40 Suites for Demolition, Fire Safety Costs Blamed

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Three Victoria lawyers who own the 40-suite St. Helen's Apartments at 828 Courtney plan to demolish the building rather than carry out costly improvements ordered by fire officials to meet current safety standards.

"The cost of bringing this old building up to the standards they require — the 1975 National Building Code — is just an impossibility," Chris Randall, president of RMP Developments, said Monday.

Randall said tenants in the rambling three-storey frame apartment haven't had eviction notices yet, but they are aware that the building is to be closed and demolished "before the end of the year."

The closure announcement comes only about five weeks afer the property owners were served with an order July 4 by the local assistant to the B.C. Fire Marshal (an official in Fire Chief Eric Simmons' department), instructing them to upgrade the building and its equipment.

Simmons acquired the new powers to deal with substandard buildings under recent amendments to the Fire Marshal's Act, but before he launched the program last month he warned city council that in some cases the financial burden on owners could result in the buildings being closed and tenants evicted.

Old hotels and apartments with large numbers of occupants are receiving priority attention by the fire officials. A spokesman said Monday nine orders listing required improvements have already been issued, and another seven are ready to go out.

In the case of the St. Helen's Apartments, the order set out two pages of requirements, including such points as access to fire exits, fire detection and alarm systems, emergency lighting and boiler enclosure.

Randall, whose partners in RMP Developments are fellow-lawyers R. J. Meyer and E. J. Pollard, said he went through the building with the assistant fire marshal and chief building inspector, "and within the first five minutes we were looking at over $40,000" in putting right various deficiencies.

"It seemed that every time we turned around we were in the position of having to make more changes," he added, because each point listed by the fire official would have needed complementary work stipulated by the building inspector.

He said the officials admitted they were allowed no discretion in the matter, and if the same rigid approach is adopted in dealing with all Victoria's older buildings he

NO M-B DIVIDEND

VANCOUVER (CP) — MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. directors have decided to omit third-quarter dividend payments.

This is the first time the company has skipped a dividend since the second quarter of 1971 when the company reported its lowest earnings in history.

Chairman George Currie said net earnings for the first half of 1975 were $19.8 million or 94 cents a share compared to $50.21 million or $2.37 a share in the corresponding 1974 period.

Sales and other income was $715.94 million in the first half of 1975 and $720.93 million in the same period last year.

Currie said the company's shipping subsidiary, Canadian Transport Co. Ltd., lost $6.7 million after income tax recoveries and the market for building materials, packaging products and liner board was depressed.

"Further transportation losses which are anticipated during the last half of 1975 could impair significantly the profitability of MacMillan Bloedel for that period," he said.

Jobless Totals Still a Record

OTTAWA (CP) — The national unemployment rate remained at a 14-year record high in July, with a slight increase in the jobless rate for women and workers in Newfoundland and Alberta.

Statistics Canada reported today the July rate was 7.2 per cent, a level which has remained constant for five months, except for May, when it dropped to 7.1 per cent.

The British Columbia rate was down four-tenths of one per cent to 7.9, still above the national average.

The Canada-wide rate continued to be the highest since 1961, when the July 7.2 per cent represented the beginning of a decline after 11 months of higher levels.

Although there were slightly fewer jobs available in July of this year, the number of persons seeking work declined at a marginally greater rate. The statistics are adjusted for seasonal variations. Economists regard adjusted figures as a more accurate measure of unemployment.

On an actual basis, 653,000 were officially unemployed in July, 89,000 in B.C.

Student unemployment dropped to 8.1 per cent from 14.4 per cent in June — consistent with the annual pattern — although the rate remained high in comparison with the two previous years. Student unemployment was 6.1 per cent in July, 1974, and 5.8 per cent in July, 1973.

On a seasonally-adjusted basis, the unemployment rate for those 24 and younger dropped to 12.3 per cent from 12.6 per cent in June.

The rate for men 25 and older dropped to 5.5 per cent from 5.6 in June while the rate for women of the same age increased one-tenth of one per cent to 4.7 per cent.

The jobless rate dropped or remained steady in all provinces except Newfoundland, where it rose one per cent to 18.9, and Alberta, where it increased to 4.4 per cent from 4.2 in June.

The best improvement was in Manitoba, where the rate dropped by 1.7 per cent to a 2.6 per cent rate for July.

Little change had been expected in the July unemployment rate, although forecast-
